Lynch May Buy Atlanta Baseball Franchise

DEAL NOT CLOSED, BUT ALL INVOLVED WILL MEET TODAY

President Spiller Holding Out for Higher Figure Than That Offered, He Declares.

BUT THINKS TRADE WILL BE ARRANGED

Many Offers Have Been Made for Franchise, Considered Most Valuable in South.

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

That S. A. Lynch, well-known theatrical magnate and capitalist, might become the owner of the Atlanta baseball franchise, was admitted last night by R. J. Spiller, president of the Atlanta baseball association, and officials of the Lynch enterprises.

Offers Are Frequent.

"Offers for the Atlanta franchise have become common," Spiller declared. "They have come from well-known business men in this city, from out-of-town capitalists and from owners of big league clubs seeking investments in minor league organizations."

President Spiller declared that he preferred to sell his holdings to Mr. Lynch over scores of others that had made overtures. The majority of the minority stockholders in the association shared this preference, Spiller asserted. He and his associates feel that the Southern Enterprises would stop at no obstacle in the effort to bring about a winning combination.

Wants $125,000.

"In the first place I am not going to sell for less than mightily close to $125,000. Then the new owners must consent to a ten-year lease of the Ponce de Leon ball park at $7,500 per year and I will positively not part with the right to the concessions. Unless these terms are met, a cool million dollars wouldn't swing the deal."

President Spiller purchased the franchise last year, in order to protect his concessions privilege, he later declared. The Atlanta attendance in 1921 was so large, however, that pre-eminence in our recognition of the commercial and industrial value of gastronomy. On this recognition is founded the tremendous popularity of the luncheon clubs that grow in strength and numbers almost every week that passes.

It's fairly apparent that hundreds of busy men would not gather together each week and pay out good money for decidedly inferior food if they were not getting something very definitely valuable out of those gatherings. It is not the value of the forced camaraderie and the mildewed "stunts" (I wish the legislature or the council or the church or somebody or something would ban the word) that attract these men together. It is the simple fact that these luncheons afford the sole opportunity offered since the passing of the saloon and the old time club with its bar attachment, for busy men to meet during business hours and exchange views about business.

Every man loves to talk shop. He loves the subject because he knows more about "shop" than anything else and because his interest is more keenly alive in "shop" and everything that relates thereto than anything on earth with the possible exception of that rapidly disappearing institution known as the home.

The luncheon clubs permit him to talk shop to his heart's content and talk to a man who is just as interested in a particular line of business as he is. Wherefore luncheon clubs proper, despite different menus, banal speeches and "stunts" that are generally as abominable as the word itself.

THE principle of the luncheon club has found a practical application here in Atlanta, that while it is admittedly experimental, has promise of revolutionizing the daily life of men and women employed in great numbers by business institutions.

Last week the Citizens and Southern bank opened a dining room for its employees on the third floor of its magnificent new building. There is nothing new in this feature. Business houses have long ago tried the experiment of having employees lunch right on the premises and have generally had splendid results.

The Citizens and Southern plan is distinctly novel in this. Though there are more than one hundred men and women employed in the bank, each one is given lunch absolutely free of charge and the meals served are meals that would cost between 75 cents and $1 in the downtown cafeterias, possibly double that amount in the first-class restaurants and are impossible of purchase in the usual downtown restaurant that is packed along about the middle of the day.

But listen to the plan as elucidated by W. W. Banks, executive manager of the bank. Mr. Banks says: "We have installed this dining room distinctly as an investment. We believe that it will pay though not one cent comes into the bank and though the daily expenditure on the dining room might seem almost lavish."

"For a long time we have noticed that our clerical force at the lunch hour rushes almost unanimously to a soda fountain, devours sandwiches that may or may not be digestible, while standing hump-backed over the marble serving counter. Others flock to restaurants where they sit on narrow stools, get served in a rush amid an environment that practically guarantees that they'll bolt down their food, which they seldom enjoy, and then attempt to get back to work."

"It's next to impossible that they can work. In the scurry of getting to the restaurant, of getting served, of eating it and paying for it there is not one second for mental or physical relaxation. I believe that a period of relaxation during the day is essential to a successful business man as a good night's sleep."

"We start work with fresh vigor each morning because we have relaxed the night before. I believe that if we relax some time about midday we'll start work with fresh vigor in the afternoon."

RAIL UNION HEADS ADJOURN MEETING WITHOUT DECISION

Appearance of Janitor With Mop and Broom Stops Parley for Strike Settlement.

NO ACTION IS TAKEN AT TUESDAY MEETING

But Committee Will Meet Again Today—Jewell Will Not Announce Progress.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, September 12.—A hunky janitor put a sudden end to negotiations seeking a basis for settlement of the railway shop crafts' strike today when, a mop and broom in hand, he ordered the shop craft policy committee of 90 out of the hall in which they were meeting and they adjourned until tomorrow without taking any definite action.

At a critical period of the two-day session, the janitor announced: "You fellows gotta get outa here: five sharp. I gotta clean up for some wimmin'."

B. M. Jewell, strike leader, had just finished an appeal and a vote was in prospect. But with the lease of the hall expiring in ten minutes, the proceedings were halted while efforts were made to obtain a few minutes' grace. When these efforts failed, the adjournment was ordered. Mr. Jewell issued the following statement: "The meeting has adjourned today to meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, without any action having been taken. We hoped to get somewhere today, but our meeting was unfortunately interrupted."

These few words, Mr. Jewell said, were all he cared to give out for publication.

Today's session was marked by an apparent lessening of the tense atmosphere that surrounded the meeting yesterday. The men appeared more jovial and the leaders themselves seemed more cheerful.

That at least one eastern railroad executive is interested in the negotiations became known today. S. Davies Warfield, president of the Seaboard Air Line and president of an association said to control $13,000,000 of railroad securities, has been receiving daily reports of the sessions. A personal representative has been advising him.

Veteran Assistant Fire Chief Dies Tuesday Night From Injuries in Blaze Last Month.

W. Frank Coley, assistant chief of the Atlanta fire department and one of the most widely known and popular members of the department, died at 7 o'clock Tuesday night at the residence, 198 Cascade avenue, following injuries sustained two weeks ago while fighting fire in the plant of the J. V. Stuphlin company, Marietta at Johns street, according to members of his family.

The fire in the storage rooms of the Stuphlin company caused a dense smoke to fill the building, the assistant chief becoming blinded temporarily from the smoke. His eyes, which were infected six years ago by the Bombay-Reed company fire, Auburn avenue at Dry street, which injured eighteen firemen, had never entirely healed and the smoke and exposure from the fire on August 28 last, is said to have re-infected his eyes causing him to quit his post the next day and take to his bed. He is also said to have been a sufferer from other ailments which went against him in his efforts to recover from the infection to his eyes.

Mr. Coley was appointed assistant chief in 1918 by Fire Chief Coby and was considered one of the most capable and efficient members of the department. Prior to his appointment to the ranking position next to the chief, Mr. Coley had devoted more than twenty-five years in the service of the local department. He was stationed at No. 8 company, Spring street and Carnegie street.

20,000 AFFIDAVITS IS U. S. EVIDENCE AGAINST STRIKERS

Reading of Testimony Backing Government's Conspiracy Charge Begun at Strike Hearing.

MODIFICATION PLEA ARGUMENT DEFERRED

Court Rules That Government Must First Try to Prove Case of Concerted Violence.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, September 12.—With more than 20,000 affidavits charging assaults by strikers and strike sympathizers on railroad workers in every section of the country, the government today launched its endeavor to show a concerted effort by the striking shop crafts to interfere with interstate traffic by driving railroad employees from their work.

Overruling the objections of attorneys for B. M. Jewell and John Scott, the strike leaders, Federal Judge Wilkerson admitted the affidavits in evidence for the time at least in the hearing on the government's bill for a temporary injunction against some 240 shop crafts officials and their followers.

The court likewise deferred for the present argument on the defense motion for modification of the temporary restraining order now in force. He ruled that the government's contention, that the dominant purpose of the alleged conspiracy is the destruction of interstate traffic, would be a vital factor in determining whether the unions were entitled to any modification in the order, and directed the government to proceed with the evidence on which it expects to prove that claim.

Oppose Affidavits. The value, as evidence, of the affidavits of persons assaulted by the strikers and strike sympathizers, or affidavits of public or railroad officials claiming knowledge of such assaults, was vigorously opposed by Donald R. Richberg and Frank Mulholland, attorneys for Mr. Jewell and Mr. Scott. They fought their introduction and entered a general objection to all of them that the government may produce. The affidavits, they declared, are at the best only secondary evidence and they fall, they added, to show any connection between their clients and the perpetrators of the acts of violence complained of. A few isolated acts of violence among four hundred thousand men on strike are insignificant in themselves, Mr. Richberg declared. "They would be

TOWNSEND LEADING IN MICHIGAN RACE

Few Surprises in Many Primary Elections Held Over Country on Tuesday.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Columbia, S. C., September 12.—Thomas G. McLeod, of Bishopville, was nominated over Cole L. Blease for governor of South Carolina in the democratic primary today. Nomination in the democratic primary in South Carolina is equivalent to election. With less than one hundred precincts in the state unreported the Blease being more than 15,000, the figures being from all the 46 counties in the state, most of them complete: McLeod, 98,377; Blease, 82,980.

James H. Hope, of Union, defeated John E. Swearingen, the incumbent, for superintendent of education by a decisive majority, the figures showing Hope 104,260, and Swearingen 73,430. Only one congressional race was left for today's primary, all other representatives in congress having been renominated in the first primary two weeks ago. In today's primary Philip H. Stoll, of Kingsport, representative of the sixth district, was defeated for renomination by A. H. Gasque, of Florence. The incomplete vote showed: Gasque 13,591 and Stoll 12,920. Missing boxes are understood to be in territory expected to be favorable to Gasque. Information to The State from Florence was that Mr. Stoll had conceded his defeat.

McLeod assumed a lead on the

CRISIS IS PASSED FOR MRS. HARDING

Official Bulletin Issued at 7:30 Tuesday Night States Immediate Danger in Case Is Over.

Washington, September 12.—(By the Associated Press.)—The condition of Mrs. Harding was such tonight that the official bulletin issued at 7:30 o'clock stated that "unless unforeseen exacerbations arise all consultants feel that the immediate crisis of the case has been passed." This statement was made after confidence had been expressed during the day by attending physicians, as her condition continued to improve, that the crisis had passed. Definite announcement also had been made late in the day for the first time that no operation would be necessary at present.

The official bulletin followed: "Mrs. Harding's condition 7:30 p. m.: Temperature, 99.4; pulse, 104; respiration, 28. "Laboratory findings show elimination increasing. Complications indicating surgical interference decreased to such an extent that Dr. Charles Mayo returned to Rochester, Minn., this afternoon. Dr. Carl W. Sawyer is leaving for Marion, Ohio. He will return to Washington Friday. Unless unforeseen exacerbations arise all consultants feel that the immediate crisis of the case has been passed. "C. E. SAWYER."

Crisis Passed Monday.

Dr. Sawyer declined to predict how long in the event Mrs. Harding's condition continues to improve, she would be confined to her room. Dr. Sawyer said the question of an operation in the future would be "entirely up to Mrs. Harding." Physicians in attendance, he added, had not reached a conclusion as to whether it was imperative that one be performed.

SIMS TELLS CROWD POLITICAL FOEMEN THREATEN DEATH

"Say They Will Kill Me Before They Will Let Me Be Mayor," He Says. Attacks Woodward.

WOODWARD CHARGES "12-20" INFLUENCES

Candidates for State and County Offices Address Meeting at Georgia Avenue School Tuesday.

Rumored threats against his life to prevent him from becoming mayor of Atlanta were disclosed by Councilman Walter A. Sims at a meeting Tuesday night of the Second Ward Citizens' club at the Georgia Avenue school.

"I have heard that before some of the supporters of my opponent will permit me to be mayor they will murder me," he said. "They'll have to do it, because I'm going to be mayor." The councilman had that completed a scorching denunciation of James G. Woodward, his opponent, who had left the meeting because of illness. He charged, among other things, that Woodward, and not he, was conducting a campaign of prejudice, and was backed by the Knights of Columbus.

Calls Him Anti-Labor.

He accused Woodward of false professions to union labor. He said that while Woodward was mayor he acted as the agent of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, vetoing ordinances to lay paving abutting the property of that road, which did not want to bear its share of the cost. "And if there's any concern a bigger scab company than the A. B. & A. I'd like to know it," he declared.

The speaker read an affidavit made by an A. E. Denise in which Denise alleged that in conversation with Woodward on August 21, Woodward told him that if he was elected mayor he would serve only long enough to appoint the council committees and get them working, then he would resign.

Repeats Ring Charge.

"He would only want to be mayor long enough to protect the gang that put him in," Sims charged. Mr. Sims told the crowd that he had substantiated proof in black and white of his charges that Woodward, Beavers and Nutting were put in the first race by a "police station ring." "A conference was held at police station attended by Detective Chief Lamar Poole, Aldine Chambers, Norman Harper, Jim Maddox and one other whose name I have not learned. They put these three men in the race and they didn't care which one you voted for, either. But we've got 'em in a corner now. We've got 'em where they've got just one man to vote for."

Nearly a dozen candidates for city, county and state offices delivered speeches at the meeting. Mr. Woodward, who complained of feeling ill, was allowed by the chairman to speak out of his regular runs on the program. He preceded Mr. Sims and then left the machine to return to

CITY DETECTIVE DEPARTMENT HIT BY ANDY KING

Violations of State Law Charged to Two Atlanta Officers by Police Commissioner.

COMMISSION MEETING HEARS "LIE" PASSED

King Denies Bringing Whisky to Atlanta in Police Car, as Sleuth Charged.

The "lie" was passed in a clash between Commissioners Andy R. King and Ellis B. Barrett on one side, and Detective Chief A. Lamar Poole and Officers J. Turnell Malcombe and John W. Lowe on the other, at the meeting of the board of police commissioners Tuesday night, before which Commissioner King charged the detectives with flagrant violations of the state motor vehicle laws in operating an automobile belonging to the city under a license tag that had been issued to George Meek, of Dallas, and also with being carried on the city's payroll while in foreign cities and states engaged in the search of stolen automobiles for the purpose of collecting rewards, in violation of the rules promulgated by the police board.

These accusations brought Detective Chief Poole instantly upon his feet in defense of the accused officer, and drew the remark from Commissioner King that he was aware of the fact that these violations of the state law and regulations of the police department were with the full knowledge of the head of the detective department.

Officers Malcombe and Lowe admitted the charges of Commissioner King were true, but explained that they had had to use a license tag other than those issued for city cars when making trips outside of the city in search of stolen automobiles.

They also admitted that they were carried on the city's payroll while absent from the city, several days at a time, searching for stolen machines in other states and towns, and also that rewards were offered for the finding of such cars.

Whisky Charge Made.

Officer Malcombe then exclaimed to Commissioner King: "And we were on the city's payroll when we drove you from a nearby town, bringing with us five pints of corn whisky," to which charge Commissioner King shouted that if Malcombe intended to intimidate

STEEPLEJACK DIES OF 40-FOOT FALL

C. A. Burdett Fatally Injured When Chimney He Was Repairing Collapsed Tuesday Morning.

C. A. Burdett, a steeplejack, residing at 20 Delaney street, is dead, and W. T. Hill, a carpenter, aged 55, 12 Rawlins street, lies in a critical condition at Grady hospital as the result of falls while at work Tuesday. Burdett fell 40 feet through a skylight to the floor of the Trio laundry at Edgewood and Fort street, when a chimney he was working on collapsed.

The accident happened at 10 o'clock in the morning. The man had climbed to the top of the chimney and had started to work, when suddenly a shower of bricks and a human form fell through the skylight, at the feet of the workers. No one else was injured.

Internal Injuries.

After the man had been rushed to Grady hospital hopes for a time were entertained for his recovery, but upon thorough examination it was found that his injuries of an internal nature were fatal. He sank rapidly and died in a few hours. Hill was at work on a window at the Georgian Street school. He was standing on a ladder about 25 feet above the ground, when, losing his balance, he fell to the pavement before the eyes of a score of school children. Hospital authorities described his

GEORGIA PRIMARY ELECTION TODAY CENTERS INTEREST

Fulton Commission and Legislature Races Attract Much Interest. Other Local Races.

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

As election day dawned Wednesday Georgia voters are preparing to cast their ballots in the statewide democratic primary with two candidates for governor claiming victory right up to the hour the polls open.

In a final statement issued Tuesday night managers of the campaign of Clifford M. Walker declared their candidate would receive a majority of the county unit votes in every congressional district in the state. This assertion was based on information in letters and telegrams received in the last few hours of the campaign.

Hardwick headquarters also claimed a victory, declaring Governor Hardwick will be re-elected by a big vote.

More Interest Shown.

More interest in the race was shown Tuesday than at any time during the campaign. Crowds of people were in the Kimball house lobby discussing all the races and it was said some stout wagers were placed. In the face of the state election, interest in the city fight waned, somewhat but probably will be revived as soon as the statewide fight is out of the way.

It is expected that a large vote will be polled in the state race due to the participation of women voters. Otherwise the vote would have fallen off to less than normal, according to members of the state democratic executive committee.

The county unit vote this year will be larger than ever before as the legislature last year re-apportioned the state on a basis of the 1920 census returns. Under the reapportionment there are now eight counties having six convention votes each instead of five counties as heretofore. There are thirty counties with four votes each instead of twenty-six. This leaves 120 counties with two votes each.

New Six-Vote County.

Under the law a county has two votes in the state convention for each member the county has in the lower branch of the general assembly. The six-vote counties now are Fulton, Bibb, Muscogee, Richmond, Floyd, Chatham, DeKalb and Laurens were added to the six-vote list by the legislature at the 1921 session.

The counties having four convention votes are the following: Bartow, Brooks, Bulloch, Burke, Carroll, Clarke, Cobb, Colquitt, Coweta, Decatur, Dodge, Dougherty, Elbert, Emanuel, Gwinnett, Hall, Houston, Jackson, Jefferson, Lowndes, Meriwether, Mitchell, Screven, Sumter, Thomas, Troup, Walker, Walton, Ware, Washington, Wilcox, Worth.

In Walker headquarters it was claimed that Walker would receive a majority in at least two-thirds of the Borah rider, proposing an appropriation of $20,000,000 for the reclamation of arid lands in the west, both of which he charged were indefensible. The Liberian loan, Senator Watson said, would set a dangerous precedent for the government at this time. He further stated that there was little likelihood of the loan,

if granted, ever being paid.

"I really would like to see what senator would venture to say that he honestly expected the Liberian loan would ever be repaid," Senator Watson said. "Nobody ever expects it to be repaid. What is more, Liberia will not get enough of that money, if invested in meat, to make a frying pan smell across this chamber."

Referring to a book "subject," Senator Watson pointed out that the population of Liberia was reported at 50,000, consisting mostly of indigenous negroes.

"We are going to lend $5,000,000 to 50,000 negroes in Liberia, who rather give it to the negroes of Washington city, or to those in Alabama and Georgia, whose needs for it are much greater."

"In Liberia the negro does not have to wear anything in particular except a palm leaf and pleasing expression of contentment. Five million dollars to be given to 50,000 negroes. That is a hundred dollars a piece for every negro German, every negro German woman, every negro German child in Liberia, and what is the name of God would they do with the money if they got it? Suppose a negro family in Liberia consists of an average of five, there would be a gift of $500 to every negro family in Liberia."

Senator Watson observed that the negro families of the District of Columbia would have something of a sublimant time if given this amount of money.

There was some misapprehension about the origin of Liberia, he said.
Philanthropists' Dream.

"Apparently the attempt has been made to impress congress with the idea that Liberia was founded by the government of the United States, a kind of an adopted child for which we are responsible."

"Nothing can be further from the truth. Liberia was a dream of philanthropists long before the civil war.
There never was a time when she could support herself. She was always, from year to year, supported and maintained by the colonization societies, and when the societies went in despair, she went into debt to European nations and to American financiers, and the real essence of this so-called Liberian loan is to pay off her debts and to pay them to American and European financiers."

Besides setting a dangerous precedent, "this is no time to take more money out of the people's treasury and give it to a foreign country," Senator Watson said.

"What excuse can we give and what will the public say when we tell them that one of the last things we did was to give $20,000,000 to bring in some more desert lands on the other side of the continent and give and the work accomplished will more than pay for any expenditure looking to that end we may have incurred.

"THAT'S how we hit on this dining room plan. We believed that by furnishing our employees with a substantial meal at the noon hour, served them skillfully and quietly, with all the appointments of a first-class restaurant, we'd give them an opportunity to not only obtain better food than their pocketbooks could possibly afford outside, but to give it to them in an environment of rest and relaxation that would send them back to their desks or their adding machines with a renewed energy that will be of undoubted value."

MEALS FURNISHED
EMPLOYEES FREE.

"We first considered charging a nominal sum for each meal. We discarded the idea. We believe that the psychological effect will be better if this meal is furnished absolutely without any financial responsibility on the part of the employees."

"And you can be sure that while these men and women are waiting for their meals, and while they are eating them, they are talking and somewhere in that conversation, though hushed and dancing and full of style and the latest may predominate, banking is going to get its due share of attention and so is this particular bank. We'll get paid again there."

"There is no provision that our employees must lunch here, but we have directed all our plans to have the food so good and the environment so pleasing that they wouldn't eat anywhere else if they were given the food and a money premium in addition."

AND while on the subject of gastronomy in general, let it be here be briefly stated that Judge Sheppard Bryan, recently elevated to the superior court bench by gubernatorial appointment, is the one luncheon club speaker in Atlanta, and I've heard 'em all, including myself, who has had wit enough and common sense enough to make luncheon club speaking other than a pest and an abomination.

I have fought a fair fight and have kept the prospects of an overwhelming victory.

I have loved Atlanta as I have loved no other place on earth. Along these streets
I sold papers as a boy. My dreams and ambitions were established in her schools and were established in the very bricks and mortar of her marvelous progress.
Going away to the farm was a crushing blow to my mind. I came back to my childhood to dedicate the best years of my life to her.

I have loved the whole district that has been my home. I have loved the faith and approval, and day and night in congress it has been my passion and my pride to serve my country, and I have with impartiality, fidelity and tireless devotion.

My people know this and I rejoice in that prospect of such a vote of confidence today by the Georgia Educational Association of government and of service which have

JOHNSON E. OWEN,
JAILED IN DEATH
OF BAILIFF, FREED

Columbus, Ga., September 12.—
(Special).—County Officer Johnson
E. Owen, who has been in the county jail three days in connection with the fatal shooting of Bailiff J. O.
Clements, Saturday afternoon, was released tonight.

The warrant sworn out by B. L.
Jones, brother-in-law of the slain man, Saturday night was withdrawn by him this afternoon. The charges, it was understood, were based on the fact that Owen had been talking with Clements at the time the latter was approached by Chief J. M. Huling of the county police force, when the shooting occurred.

Chief Huling and his son, Officer Hadley Huling, still are being held at the county jail on a charge of murder.

dressed up as American girls are going to dress won't really feel all dressed up until the stockings come up in the old-fashioned style.

The league feels able to enforce its decision on the basis of its claim that it finally has achieved its goal in relieving the necessity for the well-dressed American women to go abroad for their creations.

Slight Consolation.

Although the boys will be forced back to the street car stops if they hope to be optically regaled in the manner to which they have become accustomed, there is some consolation in the fact that the league has learned, in the additional dictum that suit skirts will hang from eight to ten inches away from the ground, and any woman wearing 'em longer than that will be as far from fashion as one continuing to display knees.

A tour through the league's exhibit, personally conducted by Madame Ann Ripley, president, reveals that the fashionably dressed woman is going to hear a startling resemblance to the funny old ostrich which hides its head in the sand with the serene confidence that no one can see the rest of it.

The back of the aforementioned fashionable woman's gown, which she can't see, apparently isn't going to matter. There is an overwhelming tendency toward the front, where the drapery disappears into a bow, an ornament or folds. The skirts are flat and drawn smooth with that,
oh, so intriguing studied negligence,
and flare at sides and front.

Sleeves and Waistlines.

Full folding sleeves, such as have been worn for some months by the habitués of the New York bowerly as well as those of Fifth avenue and Michigan boulevard, are being shown to some extent, but the very latest in sleeves is a modified mutton leg, such as many of our mothers wore when our fathers were courting them.
They are closely fitted up to the arms, but wrinkle and grow tighter from elbow to wrist.

Waistlines are going to be left a great deal to the wearer's discretion, Mrs. Ripley told.

"The majority of designers agree on keeping it at the commencement of the hip," she explained, "but there is a tendency toward the normal line, and many of the models indicate it."

It is largely a matter of what is becoming to the individual. Fur and feathers in flower designs are going to feature hats this fall.

UPSHAW MAKES FINAL SPEECH IN DEBATE

New York, September 12.—Pola
Negri, the famous European movie vamp, with only one divorce to her credit so far, stepped into America Tuesday, exclaiming excitedly about the majestic elegance of American men, the thrilling significance of Miss Liberty, the big-saw skyline, short skirts, bobbed hair and the art of the movies.

Mme. Negri says there is art in the movies.

She is on her way to Hollywood, Cal., where, on September 25, she will begin acting in her first American film, a production of Robert Hichens,
"Bella Donna." Until next Sunday, however, she will be quartered in the Hotel St. Regis on Fifth avenue, where rooms cost upwards of $25 a day, and there in her parlor will attack the interview championship held jointly by Margot Asquith in Lady Astor, Emmede Valera and Frank Vanderlip.

Although she doesn't speak English fluently, the electric personality of the Polish vamping lady expresses itself in dramatic shudders, shiverings, shudders, smiles, frowns and sly glances to which her vocabulary of broken English is just a slight assistance.

Pola Negri could express herself to a Chockaw Chief by one flicker of her long, black eyelashes.

Tossing far below the saloon deck of the liner Majestic on the choppy waters of the bay was a tug chartered by the Polish consulate and jammed with Polish residents of New York who sang and shouted their welcome to Little Appollonia Chalutez, which is the name that Pola's paper gave her. She ran out to the rail and waved kisses to them and then ran back to take up the conversation when the tug left—about the statue of liberty.

"Ah! The statue of liberty," she exclaimed. "It is America. I have waited so many years to see America! But I am proud to be Polish."

Next in order came the matter of short skirts. She did not approve of short skirts because most women's ankles couldn't stand the pitiless revelation. Also, short skirts were in-artistic, which was the only reason why she personally wore long ones.

She wears her hair bobbed, however, but not in obedience to the fad. Her father had it clipped when she was a little girl and bobbed it remains.

Final Statement.

In a final statement to the voters of the fifth congressional district
Tuesday night Congressman William D. Upshaw, who is offering for re-election, declares he is confident of an overwhelming majority in the election today. Congressman Upshaw

MOB DEFENDANTS FOUND NOT GUILTY

Forsyth, Ga., September 12.—(Special).—Troy Raines, Nathan Unice, Gordon Herndon and Hector L. Mc-Swain, of Macon, were this afternoon found not guilty of murder in connection with the death of John Glover, negro, by a jury in the Monroe county superior court at this place. The jury deliberated only 30 minutes. Glover was lynched by a Bibb county mob, just across the Monroe county line,
on August 1.

W. H. M. Weaver, foreman of the Bibb county grand jury; E. B. Harold, secretary, and J. W. Lee, a member of that body, were in the court house this morning. Each carried a brief case. It is understood that their mission was to check up on the alleged discrepancies in testimony offered by witnesses for the state Monday.

The three men refused to discuss the object of their visit to Forsyth. Later in the day they were in consultation with Solicitor General Owens and Garrett.

The state abruptly closed its case this morning after one witness had been placed on the stand. Solicitor General Emmett Owens announced that the evidence adduced from some of the fourteen witnesses called by the state was "the most changed evidence he had ever seen."

The defense closed its case one hour later without offering any witnesses.
The four defendants took the stand and made lengthy unsworn statements, which when summed up brought out that they had gone to the scene of the lynching solely for the purpose of aiding Bibb county officers and not to take part in the lynching.

The state attempted this morning to change the tide of evidence adduced from its own witnesses yesterday, by placing Deputy Sheriff William Bran-an, of Bibb county, on the stand. Mr.
Branan stated that members of the mob jerked him bodily out of the car which also contained the negro and he was struck by the defendant Unice as the latter eluded his way through the crowd in order to get to the car.

The officer testified that the blow struck by Unice was unintentional.

On the cross examination Deputy Sheriff Branan stated that to his personal knowledge, McSwain and Raines had volunteered their services to the sheriff's office and told of one incident where Raines had aided him in an effort to locate a negro from whom he was anxious to get information concerning the whereabouts of Glover.

EDUCATORS TO MEET

Benjamin Smith.
Milledgeville, Ga., September 12.—(Special.)—Benjamin Smith, one of the best and most prominent farmers of this county died Sunday morning about 9 o'clock at his home some eight miles from town near Sirmans, Ga., after an illness of two weeks of influenza. Mr. Smith was 70 years of age. He was born and reared in old Clinch county, and lived in it all his life until last year, when the creation of Lanier county made him a citizen of this county. He has been a leading member and prominent in the councils of the Methodist church for about 40 years.

Buenos Aires.—The Argentine government has sent a message to congress asking, in view of the desperate condition of Russia, authorization to lend the soviet government five million pesos, to be repaid when circumstances permit, without interest.

TARIFF CONFEREES REPORT TO HOUSE

Washington, September 12.—The administration tariff bill as finally perfected in conference was presented today in the house and the conference report on it, bearing the signatures of the republican managers, will be called up tomorrow with the expectation that it will be disposed of not later than Tuesday. The measure then will go to the senate but because of opposition to the dye embargo and other provisions, action there may be delayed a week or more.

As now framed, the bill is estimated roughly by the experts to raise approximately $400,000,000 in revenue on the basis of the present volume of the nation's import trade. The level of its rate, according to the experts, is slightly below the level in the Payne-Aldrich bill, the last republican protective tariff, but is considerably above the level of the democratic Underwood law now in force. The bill will become effective immediately after President Harding signs it, replacing both the Underwood and emergency tariff acts. It is designed to a large extent, its framers have said, to meet the unusual world economic situation and more particularly to protect American industries from the low cost industries in Germany and the countries carved out of Austria-Hungary.

In its effort to meet this situation the house based the duties on American valuation, that is, the value of the American article comparable to the imported article, but the senate went back to the time-honored system of foreign valuation. It added, however, provisions for increasing or decreasing rates on foreign valuation and to declare American valuation, that is, the wholesale selling price in the United States, as the basis for assessing duties wherever it was shown that this was necessary.

The conferees in perfecting these provisions, however, decreed that the president could not increase rates after he had declared American valuation. He might, however, decrease them within a radius of 50 per cent. Where the foreign valuation remained in effect, the president could raise or lower any rate within a radius of 50 per cent of that fixed in the measure.

CITY DETECTIVE DEPARTMENT HIT

that he had any knowledge of any whisky being brought in he was a "liar."

Malcombe insisted that he and Commissioner King, who was in the car he had no knowledge of it, demanding that charges be preferred against the officers upon their own admission that they had transported whisky into the city.

Commissioner Barrett at this juncture sponsored the case of Commissioner King, asking that charges be preferred against Detective Malcombe for lowering the dignity of the board by his disrespectful replies to questions, and arguing with the commissioner.

Commissioner Barrett renewed the attack on the department saying that Atlanta police were ill-equipped by not having adequate motor equipment to answer various emergency calls, and protesting against taking an automobile out of the service and placing it in the hands of "two reward seekers" to keep away from the city indefinitely.

Commissioner Barrett also pointed out the sore need of the police department to more men to meet the crime situation, and denounced the practice of sending two officers into other cities, towns and states to do detective work, while criminals plundered Atlanta homes and stores, and robbed citizens upon the highways.

Custom in Other Cities.
Police Chief James L. Beavers and Chief Poole told the board that the same practice was indulged in by other cities, and requested that the board definitely decide whether detectives shall be required to stop at the city limits when looking for stolen automobiles.

On motion of Commissioner I. E. Wilcox the discussion was declared out of order and quiet once more prevailed under the pounding of the gavel by Dr. C. J. Vaughn, chair man of the board.

The license tag in question which Detectives Malcombe and Lowe had been issued, according to Commissioners Barrett and King to George Meek, of Dallas, and had been reported to the local police as stolen or lost. Commissioner Barrett made the point that it would have been an easy matter for the officers to have phoned the secretary of state's office and found out the owner of the tag.

The departmental regulation which the officers were accused of violating is section 84 in the rules and laws promulgated by the board of police commissioners, and which forbids officers from making trips into other cities or states for the purpose of getting a prisoner, either at the expense of the city, private individual or otherwise, without filing an itemized statement of expenses incurred on such trip.

It also forbids them from accepting gratuities, rewards or gifts from any one, without the approval of the police board. It was testified before the board that the officers had not furnished the itemized expense accounts, as required, although it was contended that the board had approved all rewards the officers had received.

Commissioner King and Barrett insisted that the rule or law either be respected by the men and enforced by the police board, or that it be repealed.

Badges for Motor Club.
Upon the request of J. M. Van Harten, president of the Atlanta Motor club, officers and directors of this association who so desired, were authorized to be sworn in as special traffic officers to aid the department in better informing motorists and pedestrians concerning the traffic ordinances and laws.

Badges will be furnished the following by the chief of police upon request, under the rulings of the board: President J. M. Van Harten, First Vice President Thomas Dunbar, Second Vice President William Chandler, Treasurer Julian V. Boehm and Secretary William Boehm, Jr., and Directors Robert N. Reed, W. Ton Winn, Frank Reynolds, Austin Abbott, W. A. McCullough, A. E. Harlee, W. Frank Lamb, W. R. Beah, Coke Davis, Guy Woolford, Lon Crede, Homer S. Prater and George Deibert. Mrs. George Kipstrick, wife of the traffic officer who met death on October 18, 1921, while chasing a whisky car, was allowed to draw the officer's salary for November and December of this year, on motion of Commissioner King.

Patrolman W. A. McKinney, who was injured while apprehending a negro burglar in a dwelling, was awarded one of the gold stars which the police board had purchased. Others receiving this emblem for distinguished and efficient service are J. C. Mosley, M. B. Johnson, J. W. Blazer. Two former officers who were discharged were re-elected to the force and placed at the bottom of the supernumerary list. They are D. W. Ellis and W. E. Ball.

SIMS TELLS CROWD HIS DEATH IS THREATENED

his home and did not hear Mr. Sims' charges.

Mr. Woodward spoke only a few minutes, but he played his antagonist as attempting to stir up a wave of race and religious prejudice and ride into office on its crest.

Relative to the bunco probe, an issue in the campaign, he claimed Atlanta would have been better off had it never been conducted by the city authorities. He said that Sims, despite avowed declarations to clean up the police department, is a "police court lawyer."

Answering a charge by Mr. Sims made Monday night that he left a deficit of $140,000 at the end of his last term as mayor, Mr. Woodward offered to bet his opponent $100 that he couldn't find where he had left the city in the hole a cent. He admitted a deficit but shifted the blame. He said it was caused by letting of contracts for erection of the Edgewood avenue bridge which he fought, but which the city attorney ruled could be made without his approval.

"Sims 12-20 Fool!"

Mr. Woodward again attacked his rival as a tool entered in the mayor's race by the Twelve-Twenty club.

In conclusion he pointed to his record of accomplishments as former mayor and enumerated a long list of public improvements constructed under his administration scattered throughout the city.

Among other candidates who addressed the meeting were: Miss Beatie Kempton, John Y. Smith, Frank Weldon, Frank Hooper, and Audley M. Lane for the legislature; Harvey Hill, representing Judge W. D. Ellis, candidate for re-election as judge of Fulton superior court; J. A. Morris, representing Carl Hutcheson, opposing Judge Ellis; Edwin Johnson and Tull Waters, candidates for Fulton county commissioner.

The meeting was attended by approximately 300 citizens. J. E. Cusben, chairman of the Second Ward Citizens' club, presided and introduced the speakers.

Common Fairness Calls for Congressman Upshaw's Overwhelming Re-Election

The Upshaw Campaign Committee, with ample justification, calls on the voters of the Fifth Congressional District to give an overwhelming indorsement of an able and faithful public servant who has been actively identified with this district almost from boyhood.

Charles S. Barrett, President of the National Farmers' Union, introduced Mr. Upshaw at Union City last year on the Fourth of July as "The hardest-working Congressman in Washington," and Mr. Barrett knows public men in the nation's capital.

Supplementing his dynamic energy Upshaw has brought to the service of this district a type of brilliant ability that has given him a national reputation as a speaker of eloquence and conviction. His ability and diplomacy have received the highest commendation from Congressmen, Senators, Cabinet Officers and prominent business men in Washington.

The quick action he has secured in practical business matters has brought to him the hearty support of a large majority of the business men in Atlanta. As further proof of his recognized ability in Congress he has won in this short time, the place of ranking Democrat on the Committee of Pensions, and if the Democrats should carry the next house, he will bring to this district the high honor of the Chairmanship of this important Committee.

Such exceptionally high-class work in Congress, together with his able advocacy of every moral and humanitarian measure, should have given Congressman Upshaw this term without opposition.

Common fairness, as well as the highest efficiency that can come alone from his experience, as testified by William J. Bryan, calls for Congressman Upshaw's overwhelming indorsement.

General Motors Trucks

GMC TRUCKS ARE "SEVEN STEPS AHEAD"

More Power at the Wheels

The GMC Two-Range Transmission produces more pulling power and more speed in the same truck than heretofore has been possible without the use of a costly power plant.

Its simple, practical multiplication of economical engine power in newer and greater power at the wheels has opened up vast and almost unlimited fields for heavy duty trucking—fields that could not be developed without this exclusive GMC feature.

To the Voters and Tax Payers of DeKalb County:

The names who appear below are squarely behind R. J. Freeman for Commissioner of Roads and Revenues of DeKalb County, who, we predict, will sweep this County by one of the biggest majorities a candidate ever received in DeKalb County.

We are determined to nominate Mr. Freeman, and forever "BLOT OUT" the shameful and disgraceful methods used and pulled off four years ago, when the people, by the use of money, lies and every negro voter of DeKalb county, about 739 in number, and restore again the true name of "DEMOCRACY" in old DeKalb County, Georgia. We will do this, as the whole SOUTHLAND will smile while we are doing same. OUR GOOD NAME, "OLD DeKALB COUNTY," will, and shall be restored. Watch us do it on September 13, 1922. Every good and true white citizen interested in this movement of PRIDE of our GRAND OLD BANNER COUNTY of Georgia.

VOTE TODAY!

This is election day! Vote!

It is a duty that every citizen who is qualified, man or woman, owes to himself or herself, to the best interests of all the people—and to the tenets of democratic government.

The ballot is the keystone of popular government and free institutions.

The duty to exercise it is too sacred to neglect—too invaluable to treat with indifference.

A choice of the people can be registered only by a vote of the people.

Indifference or neglect encourages government by minority, and strikes at the foundation of democracy.

Vote! Whatever may be one's views on issues, or whoever may be one's choice for office, the right to express those views and that choice at the ballot box is the right of citizenship. It is inalienable.

Vote! Not "early and often."

That day is passed; but vote.

It is a duty no citizen should even want to escape.

SAFETY IN TRAVEL.

Much commendatory comment on the part of the press, all of it richly merited, has been elicited by a recent announcement by the Pennsylvania railroad that not one of the 352,000,000 passengers carried by it during the year ending last May 31 was killed.

This record deserves high praise, especially in view of the fact that the Pennsylvania enjoyed approximately one-seventh of the total passenger traffic of the whole country during the period under review.

But praiseworthy as that record is, Fairfax Harrison, president of the Southern Railway system, calls public attention to even a better one on the part of his organization.

He issued a statement the other day setting forth that not one passenger has lost his life while on one of its trains since the management of the Southern resumed operation of its property at the termination of war-time federal control, on March 1, 1920.

Considering the fact that during the thirty-months period from March 1, 1920, to September 1, 1922, the Southern transported passengers equivalent in number to almost one-half of the population of the United States—and, as stated by President Harrison, "carried them under varying conditions, providential and human, including stress of weather and stress of strikes"—this is not only a highly gratifying, but a truly remarkable showing.

Included in the Harrison statement is another report based upon vital statistics compiled by the Southern organization which is anything but gratifying.

It shows that during the same period in which not a human life was lost aboard a Southern train, "there has been a steadily growing toll of fatal accidents at road crossings, resulting in loss of life to passengers in automobiles."

Mr. Harrison submits a comparative statement of train and automobile fatalities on the Southern lines, covering three periods of two years each, showing that during the 1912-13 period seven passengers were killed on Southern trains and an equal number of automobile passengers were killed at Southern road crossings; that during the 1913-14 period eight railroad passengers were killed, while the number of grade crossing victims mounted to 10; and that during the corresponding senger was killed, while 58 automobile passengers lost their lives at grade crossings on the Southern lines.

Obviously the drivers of automobiles throughout the Southern territory have not been as successful in protecting human life as the railroad has been.

It is a splendid thing for the railroad systems of the country to engage in "safety first" rivalry—like, for example, that between the Pennsylvania and the Southern—and for them to vie with each other in the elimination of accidents; but it would be still better if the drivers of highway vehicles would join in the competition.

The duty of precaution rests as much upon automobile drivers as upon the operators of railroad trains.

There never was and never will be an unavoidable grade-crossing accident!

Every smash-up of this kind, regardless of where it occurs or of the circumstances surrounding it, is essentially due to incompetency or carelessness or criminal negligence on the part of somebody!

Those who own or drive motor vehicles would do well to co-operate in an effort to make human life as safe on the highways as it seems to be on the railroads.

THE TARIFF BILLE.

The Fordney-McCumber tariff bill which came out of conference Tuesday is the same obnoxious measure that went to conference a few weeks ago, after two years of congressional wrangling and political juggling.

True, a few changes have been made, but with the evident purpose only of placating, as far as it dared, the millions of people even among the members of the republican party, who had denounced it as one of the most drastic measures ever conceived by any controlling party. In all practical lines the measure remains the same as when it went to conference—the highest tariff rates in the history of the American government, and a direct levy upon the consumers of the nation to pay in a large measure the political debts incurred by the republicans in 1920.

The adoption by conference of the foreign valuation plan is a step in the right direction if it meant anything but a provision in the elastic tariff—which is in itself one of the most arbitrary provisions in the history of a free government—gives to the president the power to change it to an American valuation basis at his will. Thus at least one feature that might be acceptable is destroyed by negation.

The American people will repudiate the measure at the ballot box. Senator McCumber lost his senatorial seat while he was framing the measure. Fordney has served notice of retirement. The fall elections this year will reflect the sentiment of the people, already begun by the heavily reduced republican majority in Maine, and before another president is inaugurated it will be reflected throughout the country in an election voice that will be heard around the world.

AN INSULT TO THE FLAG.

The booing and hissing with which a Minnesota audience greeted the vice president of the United States the other day constituted not only an insult to Mr. Coolidge personally, but an insult to the American flag.

According to the press dispatches, the government official first in line of succession to the presidency had accepted an invitation to deliver an address at the Minnesota state fair, but he had hardly begun his speech when the rowdism set in, and he was jeered and hissed until forced to leave the speaker's stand.

The disrespect shown him was not occasioned by anything he had said or by anything he had announced he would say.

He was not there appealing for votes; he had not come to ask any favors of the people of Minnesota.

In fact, he had done them a favor by consenting to address them, thus contributing to the success and enjoyment of their state fair—and hisses were his only reward.

The event is almost beyond comprehension, the only explanation thus far suggested being that the people preferred watching a horse race to listening to a patriotic address by the statesman whom they helped elect to the vice presidency of the United States.

But even in that event, the vice president—or any other distinguished public official, for that matter—is entitled to respectful attention and consideration when speaking to the people, more especially when his public appearance upon a stated occasion is in response to an invitation.

Vice President Coolidge represents the constitution and the American flag, and the nature of his reception at the Minnesota state fair was without a parallel in history and disrespectful to a degree that is alarming.

Regardless of whether his audience agreed with his view or not, or of whether or not they like him personally, he is, nevertheless, the vice president and as such entitled to courteous treatment upon any and all occasions.

To say the least that can be said of it, those who participated in this disgraceful manifestation of discourtesy stand in need of a few lessons in patriotism.

THE CRICKET'S CHIRP.

The blanket of night has just been folded about a tired earth. The wind has died down. A soft, silent rain has ceased. Only drippings from the roof and from overburdened leaves are heard as they fall to the ground below.

All seems so still without. Only the distant rumble of passing trains breaks the perfect peace of the night.

We have been writing and reading. Everyone else in the house has long ago felt the touch of slumber.

We lay our book on the little shelf beside our reading chair. We push our typewriter back. We listen. The only answering voice in all this silence, mystery and darkness is that of the cricket in its chair, chirp, chirp, chirp, chirp!

How very silent and lonely it would be tonight without the call of these little fellows of the night.

It's the cricket's way of telling how happy it is!

Something like the purr of the house cat, or the wag of a dog's tail, or the knowing smile of a human being.

How full this world is, anyway, of all sorts of evidence of happiness, contentment and peace.

And there is no one so poor, or bereft of sentiment, but that he is able to gather from some quarter at almost any moment of the day or night, some such kinship as the cricket's chirp, the call of a bird, or the twinkle of a star.

For we are all creatures of emotion. Sentiment builds the best that we are, deep within us.

The Infinite God understood the creature of His handiwork when he made you and me and put us here in our setting.

We are much happier tonight because outside our window, as we fall into forgetfulness of the day and its problems, its irritations, and griefs, we shall remember last the chirp-chirp of the tiny singers of the wood.

X-RAY AND RADIUM TREATMENT.

The remedial uses and effects of radium seem to be very similar to, if not identical with, those of the X-ray. Perhaps radium is more mobile and widely than X-ray treatment and therefore applicable in situations and circumstances which make X-ray treatment difficult or impossible.

From the experience of physicians and surgeons of standing, however, it would seem that in certain instances a course of X-ray treatment will prove effective or helpful when radium has failed; and on the other hand radium treatment sometimes brings about grateful relief when X-ray treatment has failed.

Both X-ray treatment and radium treatment have proved of great value in the common fibroid tumor in women, and in pathological bleeding in women.

Tumor is a not uncommon many tumors are comparatively harmless and call for no treatment unless they happen to give the individual inconvenience or discomfort. A tumor is a new growth; a cancer is not a new growth but a degeneration of the tissues and cells of some organ or other structure which was previously normal. Sometimes fibroid tumors of the uterus are considered.

It is in inoperable cases of cancer that X-ray or radium treatment is giving the greatest relief at present.

A course of treatment with X-ray or radium will sometimes bring about sufficient improvement to render such a case operable with a reasonable hope of cure.

After every radical operation for cancer, whether internal cancer or surface cancer, is an excellent plan to have the scar or site treated with X-ray or radium for the purpose of destroying any microscopic cancer cells which may have remained and thus preventing recurrence. By the way, no human eye can see a cancer cell in flesh, and therefore the quick assurance that all the cancer has been removed or destroyed is pure deception.

In many cases of surface cancer and some cases of deeply situated cancer, X-ray or radium treatment may be the method of choice—but the wise patient will be guided by his own doctor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Congenital Hip Disease.

I am a subject of congenital hip disease (dislocated by from birth). The socket has become shallow and the hip will not go back into place. If I should marry and have children would I transmit this condition to the children?—S. N.

Answer:—There would be some likelihood of inheritance of the defect by one or more children. Any physical abnormality or defect present at birth is very likely to be transmitted to offspring.

Snuff Habit.

Is the constant use of snuff injurious? Is it beneficial for chronic cold in the head?—H. L. B.

Answer:—It is scarcely beneficial for any chronic disease. A snuff habit, like drug habits in general, is likely to imagine or affect some chronic, persistent or constantly recurring indulgence as an excuse for regular indulgence. (Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution.)

La Follette and Vandaman.

(From The Cincinnati Times-Star.) Senator La Follette's victory in the Wisconsin primary election is impressive. Any man who is able to build up an organization that will give him a majority of 200,000 votes in re-electing him for the senate is an astute politician. But Wisconsin is a small, isolated state. La Follette is a man, isolated from the rest of the country. During the war it was virtually the only state in which there was active disloyalty, and during that time Robert M. La Follette very appropriately represented it in the senate. The election of Tuesday merely shows that Wisconsin has not changed. It continues to be a state for La Follette and his ways.

But every cloud has its silver lining. As Tuesday Mississippi refused to send James K. Vandaman back to the senate, thus one of the worst political pacts that have afflicted public life in this country is broken.

When Nature wishes to punish a man, she sends him a woman.

BITS OF PARIS LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution)

Paris, September 12.—The Parisian Latin quarter is like Greenwich Village, the haven for the unwashed genius. It is the center of the struggling artist—who struggles chiefly so far as I could see toward the art of "interior decoration."

The Montmartre awakens at 4 in the afternoon with the long-haired, smoked and unkempt parade to the cheap cafes. There is the heraldic bonhomie among them save when it comes to paying for drinks and then it is each man for himself.

The girls affect a certain carelessness—slapping men on the backs, sitting in their laps and hugging them openly. One came in limping. She bore her bruised knees. "Mon homme!" she said with a shrug and kicked out her foot. Her man had kicked her. She was happy about it.

Most of the girls in the cafes search eternally for some one to pay the check. And as a rule some big-hearted Otis from America, browsing around in search of adventure, pays it. The American is the real spender in the shops and cafes.

The dance places open at 11. In one that is supposed to be the wildest in its nocturnal revelry I saw the wife of one of America's richest young men. She danced with a one-armed soldier to whom Montmartre waiters she is greatly attached. For weeks she has been a nightly visitor to the district with the soldier.

Negro jazz bands are the super attraction of the saxophone. It is louder than it does along Broadway. The big idea is to keep the wine flowing freely. Girls move from table to table. The introduction is never needed. The offer of a drink takes its place.

In one cafe an American girl resented the intrusion of a French charmer and they flew at each other—scratching, biting and pulling hair. And when they had separated the American girl stood on her table, waved a tiny American flag and shouted: "Lafayette, we are here!"

At the Palace of Justice I saw the guillotine that was used to behead Landru, the famous French Bluebeard, a few weeks ago in front of the gates at Versailles. Outside the building women hawk small bottles of snuffling snuff. So many women have fainted at the sight of the blood-stained block that the saleswomen suggest they protect themselves with the mild stimulant. Landru, despite his various murders, was idolized by thousands of Parisians. They love the gay dog and Landru was one of the gayest. The souvenir shops carry clay models of him and one even pays tribute to his love-making in song.

Colonel E. M. Howe occupies quarters on the same floor at my hotel. Wherever he goes he is pointed out. He is one of America's greatest celebrities over here. (Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution.)

Young Women's Christian Association

(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution)

Nothing is nearer and dearer to the hearts of Atlantans than the girls, and the Y. W. C. A. stands as a firm foundation on which the young girls of today may build characters that will have a vast influence for good on the women of tomorrow.

The purpose of this organization is to promote growth in Christian character and service through mental and spiritual training, and to offer opportunity for better, fuller and happier living to all girls.

During the year 1921, 7,000 girls passed through the room registry of the Y. W. C. A. a department maintained for rendering assistance of all kinds to the new comers to Atlanta.

Girls from practically every state in the Union, from Canada, from France and Syria came, all asking various kinds of assistance. The aid rendered by this department may be roughly divided into three classes: a few of the cases handled during a single day.

A little bride of 17, left stranded in a local hotel, came for help. She had been married the day before in a little town in south Georgia and had come directly to Atlanta. Her husband was arrested the next morning, taken to prison and the girl left penniless and alone. A telegram was sent to her father to come for her and in the mean time she was taken to a rooming house where she was agreed to keep her until the arrival of her father.

Two girls from a small town arrived in Atlanta without funds. They had come seeking positions—their money being in a common purse, had been lost on the train and they wanted to get out of the city. The girls said they had money in the bank at home, so a telegram was dispatched to the bank and their money was sent to them by registered mail.

A young, deserted wife with a tiny baby wanted a home where her baby could receive care while she worked. After much telephoning and investigating, such a home was found and the little mother can go out to her day's work, confident that her child will be well cared for during her absence.

Next came a frantic wife from the parents of a girl who had run away from home saying she would pass through Atlanta at a certain hour. The girl was met at the train and persuaded to return home.

A girl had recently come to Atlanta, obtained a good position, but after being settled, found herself very lonely and wanted friends. This girl was put in touch with a kindly woman of her own church who promised to introduce her to young friends.

A child of 17, who works in a mill, although making good money, wished a position in better surroundings. The girl being unusually bright, will be placed in night school where she will receive special training.

Closely allied with the room registry is the employment department where an average of thirty girls a day are seeking work. This department not only runs an employment bureau on a straight employment basis, but helps through the Y. W. C. A. all branches of religious churches.

The total daily average served through various activities of the Atlanta Y. W. C. A. during 1921 was 921.

This organization maintains a boarding house at 56-62 West Baker street and annex at 10-21 West Baker street, where girls may live and enjoy a cosy home life under inspiring guidance.

The Y. W. C. A., which is open to the public, serves wholesome, nourishing food at an average of thirty-four cents a meal.

Another phase of Y. W. C. A. activity is the promoting of self-governing women and new comers to the city. These clubs, which include lectures, cultural and practical lines, meet for mental pleasure, service and profit.

In the health department, this organization had a total attendance of 20,554 during the year of 1921, 28 clubs with 379 enrolled and 14 ten-age clubs with 345 enrolled.

This organization provides opportunities for better health through gymnasium classes, recreation and health instruction and maintains a Y. W. C. A. camp in the country at Highlands, Ga., where girls may enjoy week-end trips and vacations.

The horizons of the girl today is wide. The old dependence and restriction of yesterday is gone. But the Young Women's Christian association still stands as the "firm foundation," influencing the young girl towards the best and most worthy in life. The work of the organization is made possible by the five way social service opportunity drive.

BY O. O. MINTYRE

Paris, September 12.—The Parisian Latin quarter is like Greenwich Village, the haven for the unwashed genius. It is the center of the struggling artist—who struggles chiefly so far as I could see toward the art of "interior decoration."

The Montmartre awakens at 4 in the afternoon with the long-haired, smoked and unkempt parade to the cheap cafes. There is the heraldic bonhomie among them save when it comes to paying for drinks and then it is each man for himself.

The girls affect a certain carelessness—slapping men on the backs, sitting in their laps and hugging them openly. One came in limping. She bore her bruised knees. "Mon homme!" she said with a shrug and kicked out her foot. Her man had kicked her. She was happy about it.

Most of the girls in the cafes search eternally for some one to pay the check. And as a rule some big-hearted Otis from America, browsing around in search of adventure, pays it. The American is the real spender in the shops and cafes.

The dance places open at 11. In one that is supposed to be the wildest in its nocturnal revelry I saw the wife of one of America's richest young men. She danced with a one-armed soldier to whom Montmartre waiters she is greatly attached. For weeks she has been a nightly visitor to the district with the soldier.

Negro jazz bands are the super attraction of the saxophone. It is louder than it does along Broadway. The big idea is to keep the wine flowing freely. Girls move from table to table. The introduction is never needed. The offer of a drink takes its place.

In one cafe an American girl resented the intrusion of a French charmer and they flew at each other—scratching, biting and pulling hair. And when they had separated the American girl stood on her table, waved a tiny American flag and shouted: "Lafayette, we are here!"

At the Palace of Justice I saw the guillotine that was used to behead Landru, the famous French Bluebeard, a few weeks ago in front of the gates at Versailles. Outside the building women hawk small bottles of snuffling snuff. So many women have fainted at the sight of the blood-stained block that the saleswomen suggest they protect themselves with the mild stimulant. Landru, despite his various murders, was idolized by thousands of Parisians. They love the gay dog and Landru was one of the gayest. The souvenir shops carry clay models of him and one even pays tribute to his love-making in song.

SAYS RAIL STRIKE KEEPS COAL LOW

Early settlement of the strike of the railroad shopmen will clarify the coal situation and will enable coal operators to ship enough coal into Georgia to relieve pressing needs, according to State Fuel Distributor John T. Boifeuillet in a speech delivered Tuesday at a luncheon given by the Atlanta Association of Building

Owners and Managers at the Ansley hotel. Colonel Boifeuillet said the mine operators are producing coal almost on a normal basis since the settlement of the strike of coal miners, but the mines are limited to the coal capacity tendered by the railroads as far as shipments are concerned. "Shipments from the mines are far from normal due to the strike which has had an effect on the railroads," Colonel Boifeuillet said. "The Harlan, Ky., mines are shipping at a rate of 11 per cent of normal and this is true of many other mines."

Colonel Boifeuillet explained the classification of office buildings, stating that these buildings had been raised from class five to class two. He said he would issue coal certificates to the office buildings under class two as recently announced. In his speech Colonel Boifeuillet reviewed the plans made to handle coal during the strike, expressing the view that prices would be reduced when the railway strike is settled and shipments are again being made on a normal basis.

E. M. Horne, president of the association, presided at the meeting.

Fuel Shortage Threatens State, Says Boifeuillet

Danger of a serious fuel shortage lies in the prolonged strike of railway shopmen, according to John T. Boifeuillet, state fuel distributor, and in the event of the immediate settlement it will be a matter of several weeks before cars begin to move with their normal regularity, he told the Atlanta Association of Building Owners and Managers at a luncheon Tuesday at the Ansley hotel.

Mr. Boifeuillet told the building men that his office would issue priority certificates to building proprietors who show that they have an immediate need for fuel. Coal for such use has been given the second class priority, he said.

"When I took office on August 9, coal for heating buildings was fifth class on the priority list," he said. "In response to requests from all sections of the state I urged that coal for that purpose be given as high a priority rating as coal for householders, or second class."

"On August 20 the interstate commerce commission rearranged its priority schedule. The fourth and fifth classes were eliminated, and coal for heating large office buildings was placed in the second class."

Charge Clothiers With Infringement Of "B. V. D." Copyright

Charges that two Atlanta clothing concerns, the Vogue shop, 88 Peachtree street, and the Broadway shop, 30 North Broad street, infringed on their trade mark by advertising the brands of underwear as "B. V. D.'s" were heard in federal district court Tuesday before Judge Samuel H. Sibley. The B. V. D. company, of New Jersey, appeared as plaintiffs in the case.

Argument in the case was completed, Judge Sibley reserving the verdict. Moses M. Newman and W. W. Billington, proprietors of the Vogue shop, and Sian & Kinsler, proprietors of the Broadway shop, denied they intended infringing on the trademark of the B. V. D. company, in selling garments under the name "B. V. D.'s" alleging this term was commonly applied by the public in reference to summer, or lightweight underwear.

TO TRY BANK CASE IN CHATTOOGA COURT

Summerville, Ga., September 12.—(Special.)—The cases against N. K. Bittling, cashier of the Bank of Commerce, of Summerville; H. S. Carson, cashier of the Bank of Lenoir, and J. C. Chambliss, cashier of the Bank of Menlo, have been set for hearing before the Chattooga superior court on Thursday.

The indictments against these parties grew out of an alleged shortage of approximately $15,000 in the funds of A. H. Glenn, tax collector of this county, it being claimed that they cashed Glenn's personal checks and charged them against his tax collector account.

The September term of court convened here yesterday with Judge Moses Wright, of Rome, presiding. The civil docket has eleven cases for divorce and alimony. Civil business will be halted by the state primary, which will occupy the court's attention until Wednesday, when the mill of justice will be halted by the state primary. The criminal docket will be taken up Thursday.

M'CAIN DEFENDED AS HILL'S RECEIVER

Americus, Ga., September 12.—(Special.)—Another chapter in the legal fight to remove W. B. McCain as receiver of the estate of the late J. A. Hill, of Smithville, was written when a petition was filed with Judge Littlejohn today asking that the receiver be appointed a few weeks ago to replace McCain be removed and the former reinstated. The petition sets forth that the assets of the estate have been returned to Georgia, and that there is no legal reason why Mr. McCain should not serve as receiver and administrator.

The case first came to the attention of the court when the Bank of Smithville filed a petition restraining McCain from leaving the state under the claim that as administrator of the Hill estate he had moved to Florida and had taken the assets out of the estate out of Georgia. The hearing on the new petition has been set for Saturday.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT AS DAHLONEGA OPENS

Dahlonega, Ga., September 12.—(Special.)—Dr. Milton D. Dyer, for fourteen years Professor of Germanic languages at the University of Georgia, and later director of education at Camp Gordon during the World War, is the new head of the North Georgia Agricultural college. He sees a bright outlook for the school as the 1922-23 session gets under way. It has been necessary to increase the fees and matriculation at the college, as has been the case in other state institutions. Despite this increase, according to officials, the 1922-23 session of the college was started with a large opening attendance and this year bids fair to be the best in several years.

The board of trustees have elected Professor J. B. Lockhart to fill the chair of English and education, formerly held by Dr. DuBois. Professor Lockhart was superintendent of schools at Kirtland last year and has been in educational work since his graduation at the University of Georgia, succeeding Professor J. B. Carson as head of the department of commerce is Professor H. B. Gurley, of Loganville. He also is a graduate of the state university.

DENNIS IS FOR ELLIS AND NOT HUTCHESON

Denial that he is supporting Carl F. Hutcheson for superior court judge was made Tuesday by Attorney John T. Dennis in a letter to the Constitution. Mr. Dennis said:

"My attention has been directed to the use of my name in connection with an advertisement appearing in three Atlanta papers, favoring the candidacy of Carl F. Hutcheson, for the judgeship of the superior court."

"I am fully aware that my influence, if construed to be an endorsement of Mr. Hutcheson for the judgeship, this was in connection with his application for the position of attorney for the state highway board, a position which I have since abandoned by the legislature."

"I have endorsed Judge W. D. Ellis, both publicly and privately, for judge of the superior court, and I am pledged to his candidacy."

Unidentified Man Found Unconscious in Peachtree Garage

Unconscious and writhing in pain, an unidentified man was taken to Grady hospital Tuesday morning from a Peachtree street garage.

Hospital authorities say they believe the man is suffering from the effects of poisoned whisky. They say the patient while in a semi-conscious condition stated he had drunk some liquor from a tin can, but later rallying somewhat from the effects of the supposed poison, he made a statement to the effect that he was merely "taken violently ill."

He was unable to answer questions relative to his identity. An examination of his personal effects indicated that he was Frank Gray, of Cumming, Ga.

Suits Aggregating $195,000 for Deaths In Wreck Are Filed

Damages aggregating $195,000, for two alleged homicides and the serious injury of two at White Oak, Ga., in the collision between an automobile and fast passenger train of the Seaboard Air Line railroad last April 27, are asked in five suits against the railroad, forwarded Tuesday to the clerk of the superior court of Camden county, at St. Marys by Hewlett and Dennis, Atlanta attorneys.

Four of the suits were filed by Mrs. Nannie Prickett and aggregate $145,000. Two of the suits were for $50,000 each, for the homicide of her husband, Rev. B. C. Prickett, and her daughter Evelyn, 12-year-old. For personal injuries she is alleged to have sustained she asks $40,000. She also claims an expense in the way of loss of services of another daughter that was injured severely, doctors bills, etc., the sum of $5,000.

The injured daughter, Elizabeth, brings suit through her mother, as next friend, in the sum of $50,000, alleging personal permanent injuries. Two young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Sarmons at White Oak were riding in the automobile with Rev. Prickett's family and were also killed. Court and Vovelle, attorneys at St. Marys, are associated with Hewlett and Dennis in the cases.

Doctor's Recent Discovery, Also Heals Ulcers, Boils, Carbuncles, Abscesses and Open Sores in a Few Days. The world progresses. Today ailments that took two weeks to cure can now be ended in a few days. If you have varicose veins or bunches you can start this today to bring them back to normal size, and if you are wise you will do so. Just get an original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. It is very powerful and penetrating, and only a little is required. After a few days' treatment the veins will begin to grow smaller and by regular use will soon reduce to normal. Moore's Emerald Oil besides being one of the most powerful of antiseptics capable of destroying the most pernicious germs and the poisons caused by them, is also a marvelous healing agent. One application, for instance, stops the itching of eczema, and a few applications causes the eruption to dry up, scale off and completely disappear. It is equally as effective in hastening a cure of rheumatism, and inflammatory skin trouble. People who want to reduce varicose veins, warts or goitre, or get rid of eczema, ulcers, abscesses or piles in a few days should not hesitate to get a bottle at once. It is so powerful that a small bottle lasts a long time. Any pharmacy can supply you.—(adv.)

Railroads Are Not Always At Fault When Trains Are Late

Under normal conditions there are many things that make trains late; unavoidable happenings because they cannot be foreseen and because they happen in combinations of circumstances over which nobody could have control. In nearly every instance, late trains are caused through no fault of the operating railroad, and as a matter of information a few of the main reasons for train delays are given below:

Waiting on Connections
Under mutual agreement and for the special benefit of through and trans-continental passengers, railroads hold many of their through-trains, either at the starting point or at intermediate connection stations for 30 minutes or longer. All such delays, combined, benefit the public but upset time tables and play havoc with running schedules.

Delays in Handling Mail
Government regulations require that transfer mail must always be taken if the wagon or truck is in the station before the train has actually started to pull out. It often happens that a train is ready to leave on schedule time when the transfer arrives, but must wait until the mail is handled. In the long run, these wasted minutes, unavoidable on the part of the railroad, aggregate a serious loss of time.

Equipment Troubles
In spite of the fact that every railroad engine and car are given careful inspection upon arrival in a roundhouse or terminal, and again upon departure, unavoidable mechanical difficulties will naturally arise. Most equipment troubles which cause delay are due to some slight imperfection or breakage in the engine. It is just as impossible to prevent these engine troubles as it is to foresee and forestall machinery breakdowns in the average manufacturing plant.

Weather Conditions
Snow, sleet, blizzards, fogs, floods, etc., causing blockades, landslides, washouts and congestions are responsible for many delays. These happenings on any part of the line, of course, affect the entire line by deranging schedules, which must be adjusted promptly even under great difficulties. Safety is always the first consideration.

The L. & N. Railroad, operating service from the frozen North to the semi-tropical South, inevitably encounters a great many difficulties developed by adverse weather conditions. No railroad is more watchful of its equipment or more efficient in overcoming these troubles than the L. & N., the management frequently being able to anticipate these conditions and to take effective trouble-prevention measures.

Armstrong's Linoleum

for Every Floor in the House

You live on it Stand on it
Walk on it

Keep your possessions on it

LOTS of things have been tried for floors—L earth, stone, tile, cement, and wood. All have their good points and their drawbacks.

What would you say of a floor that combined the beauty of tile and wood with a resilience and smoothness possessed by neither—a floor that was not cold to the touch, that was waterproof and never needed costly refinishing—a floor that did not absorb grease, that could be bought in almost any color or pattern desired, that was permanent and not expensive?

Well, that is the kind of floor that linoleum makes. Modern linoleum is not just a floor covering, but a real floor. When properly laid it combines the advantages and has none of the disadvantages of other types of floors.

The best way to lay linoleum over wood is to cement it over a layer of builder's deadening felt which has previously been glued to the bare floor boards.

Real linoleum has weight and strength. It is a composition of linseed oil, ground cork, and tough burlap. There is body to it.

Not all people can tell by sight the difference between linoleum, a floor material, and floor coverings with a pattern while, while they are not called linoleum, are sometimes mistaken for it. Genuine linoleum has a burlap back and does not tear easily.

Look for the Circle "A" trademark on the burlap back and you can be sure you are getting Armstrong's Linoleum, which is genuine linoleum.

Armstrong's Linoleum Rugs

For people who live in apartments or who have houses on short leases and consequently do not wish to install permanent linoleum floors, Armstrong's Linoleum is also made in the form of bordered rugs. Thirty attractive patterns in four sizes from 6 x 9 feet to 9 x 12 feet.

Every WomanDenny-Nevin Wedding Takes Place in Illinois

The marriage of Miss Maurine Louise Denny, and Henry Wells Nevin, of Atlanta, took place Tuesday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thomas Denny, in Vandalia, Ill. Rev. Joseph G. Wright, pastor of Grace Methodist church in Springfield, Ill., performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and friends.

An altar of similar and palms formed an improvised altar at one end of the living room, while pedestal vases held white roses.

Miss Katherine Haynes, of Chicago, played the wedding march.

Miss Blinnette Douglas, of Chicago, Ill., was the only bridesmaid.

Mary Jane Denny and Caroline McLain, little cousins of the bride, were flower girls.

M. A. Nevin, of Atlanta, brother of the groom, was best man.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, F. T. Denny. A reception followed the ceremony.

After a wedding journey, Mr. and Mrs. Nevin will be at home at 806 Third street, Chicago, Ill.

The bride attended the University of Illinois, where she was president of the Chi Omega Society, and a member of the junior class. Miss Denny attended the commencement dances at the University of Georgia last June, where she was one of the belles of the Chi Phi house party.

She visited Atlanta as the guest of Miss Mary Nevin. Her charming manner and personality won her many friends during her brief visit.

Mr. Nevin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Nevin, of Atlanta. He attended Boys' High school before receiving his appointment to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. He completed his studies at the University of Georgia, where he was a prominent member of the Chi Phi fraternity and later pursued special courses at the University of Illinois.

Mr. Nevin is a representative of two of the south's most distinguished families in affairs social and civic.

His paternal grandfather, the late M. A. Nevin, was one of the most beloved of Rome's pioneer citizens, being five times mayor of that city, which held him in inexpressible esteem. His great-grandfather Judge John W. H. Underwood, a distinguished jurist, served his state also as a member of congress.

On his mother's side Mr. Nevin is directly descended from some of the most prominent families of South Carolina, including the Norwoods and Heywoods.

Mrs. Rollo Honored at Birthday Tea in West End

A happy occasion yesterday was the afternoon tea given by Mrs. G. A. Howell and her daughters, Mrs. P. D. McCarley and Mrs. McWhorter Miller, at the home of Mrs. McCarley, when the guest of honor was Mrs. J. W. Rollo.

The occasion was the eightieth birthday of Mrs. Rollo, who is a pioneer citizen and one of the earliest and most popular residents of West End, active still in the interest of her friends, her neighborhood and her city.

Fifty ladies were invited to meet her. The house had tasteful decoration in September flowers with a particularly effective arrangement in the dining room, where pink and lavender were the prevailing colors. An old fashioned silver epergne was the centerpiece, and it was filled with lavender flowers and the coral vine, which trailed its pink beauty over the table. The birthday cake at one end of the table burned eighty pink candles.

Mrs. Howell's afternoon gown was of black beaded crepe with point lace collar.

Mrs. McCarley was gowned in blue flowered voile. Mrs. Miller wore white organdie with a rainbow sash. Mrs. Rollo was gowned in black satin.

Little Misses Mary Adair, Anne and Caroline McCarley assisted in entertaining.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WHY CLANK THEM?

Clank. Clank. Clank.
What is that I hear? It's the clanking of chains in the house across the way.
You would never expect, to see that house or the people that live in it, that one would hear such a sound when one stops for a chat on the veranda of a Sunday morning in September. It is a darling little newly walled house with a white kitchen cabinet, and blue gingham curtains in the kitchen, and a baby-grand piano in the living room, and a pink rambler shading the porch, and a little flivver standing out in front. And the people who live in it are the dearest, dearest couple who have been married a year and still adore each other.

The Lady Pouts.

The man of the house was reading a book in the glaucous hammock when I stopped up to ask the lady of the house if she would like to take a walk with a crowd of us. She was delighted, just what she wanted to do and called upon Jack to be delighted too. He wasn't. He had had a hard week at the office and he wanted to read his book. "Oh, do come," she begged. "I want you to go, too."

"There's plenty others going," he reminded her. "You'll have a good time."

"Yes, but it's more fun if you go, too."

"But I don't feel like walking."

A very pretty pout from the lady and a "Won't you please, dear?"

An uneasy movement from the male: "If you want to walk and I want to read why don't you do what you want to do and let me do what I want to do?"

"Because it's much more fun if you come along. You didn't use to want to read and let me go to walk with other people before we were married."

I came away about this time. I thought it better. But I came away with that clanking of chains in my ears.

Why do women do it?

But Not All the Time.

I know the lady in the case would say that that is what people get married for—to be companions and do things together.

So they do. But she and Jack do a dozen things together. If he wants to do one thing and she wants to do another once in a while what had pugged it is to make him feel that he either has to do what she wants to do or be branded as less loving than he used to be. What an unwise thing it is to make him hear the clanking of chains! There's nothing in the world people, and especially males, hate more than being made to do things. It takes the pleasure out of things you would otherwise want to do. Or course there has to be more or less of that in marriage but, for goodness sake, don't make it more when you don't have to.

He Heard Them Clank.

When we started for the walk, Jack was among us looking distinctly resentful.

During the walk she coaxed him back into good humor but that didn't alter the fact that he had heard the chains clank.

Marriage doesn't make two people always want to do the same things at the same time. Of course each must sometimes do what he doesn't want to do for the other's sake. But when there can be freedom, when each can do what he wants and meet refreshed afterwards, for goodness sake, don't clank the chains. It doesn't pay.

Edythe Brosius

Noted Harpist

Delights Audience

Good omen for the whole musical season to come lay in the success of the recital yesterday by Edythe Brosius, noted harpist, who has presented by the Atlanta Woman's club as the first artist of their musical season at their auditorium.

Mrs. Brosius, who was both personal and artistic, while the large size of the audience was another highly auspicious incident.

She revealed an exceptional mastery of her instrument, which also comparatively few exponents of the high standards of execution Mrs. Brosius has attained, and while her program proper was largely made up of such pieces as would demand virtuosity and did bring into play, she most generously added for encores those old ballads like "Silver Threads Among the Gold" and "Last Rose of Summer," which are favorites partly because they are universally familiar. They proved peculiarly adaptable, too, to the rather sentimental charm of the harp.

Madame Brosius is particularly happy in her explanations of her pieces, their period, something unusual about their composer or the composition, or some unique expression of her own character, and not only was her concert received enthusiastically, but afterwards she was surrounded on the stage by practically her whole audience of several hundred, eager to meet her.

Her audience included not only club members, but a large representation of music club enthusiasts.

For Your Own Good Please Read Them

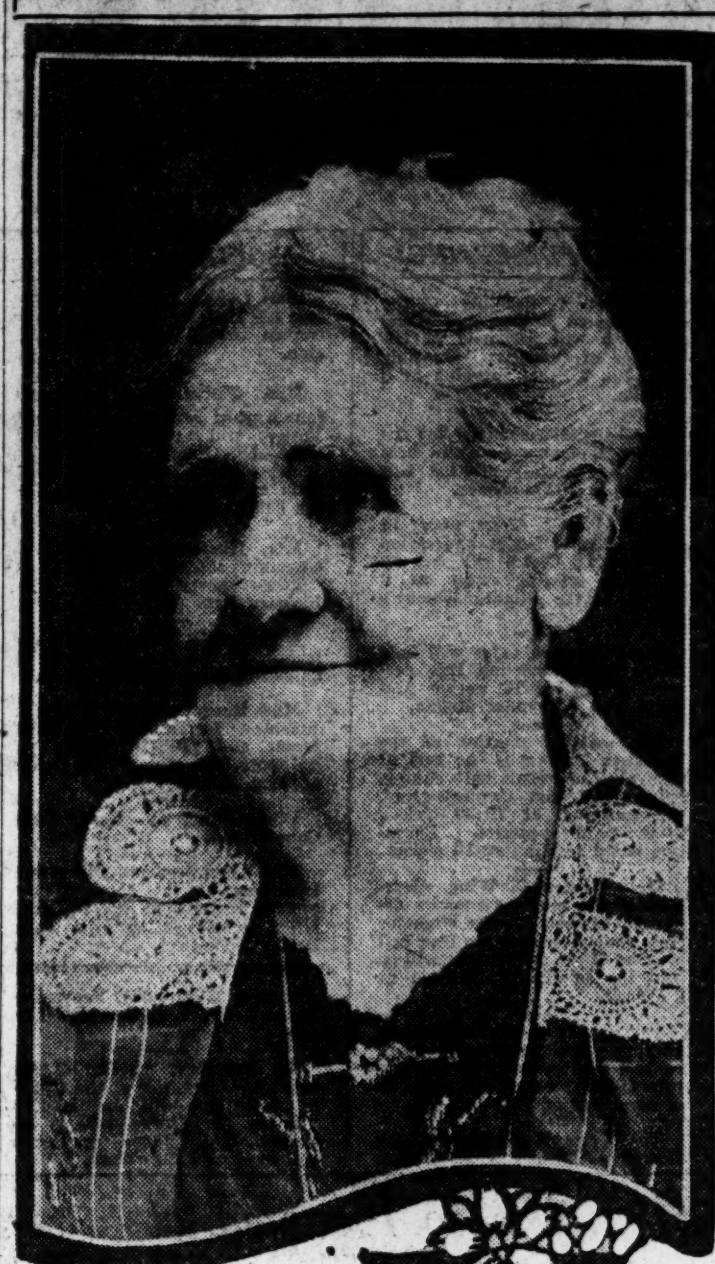

Youngstown, Ohio.—"Last fall I began to feel mean and my back hurt me and I could hardly do my little bit of housework. I was played out when I would just sweep one room and would have to rest. I would have to put a cushion behind me when I would sit down and at night I could not sleep unless I had something under my head. I had awful cramps every month and was just nearly all in. Finally my husband said to me one day, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine?' and I said, 'I am willing to take anything if I could get well again.' So I took one bottle and the second one and felt better and the neighbors asked me what I was doing and said, 'Sorely it must be doing you good all right.' I have just finished my eighth bottle and I cannot express to you how I feel, the way I would like to. If you can use this letter you are welcome to it and if any woman does not believe what I have written to be true, she can write to me and I will describe my condition to her as I have to you."

Prominent Pioneer Passes In Death of Mrs. Mitchell

MRS. ELIZABETH JANE MITCHELL

In that first organized work of women, through their churches. In fact, she was said to be the oldest member of the Trinity Methodist congregation.

In the War between the States, the Spanish-American and the World wars, she gave excellent and devoted service.

Mrs. Mitchell was the daughter of the late Nicholas Pritchett, prominent Henry county citizen.

She was eighty years of age, therefore, many of her contemporaries had gone on before her, but it was remarkable only a year ago, when her daughters gave a reception to celebrate her attainment of four score years, that her personality continued so to stamp itself on those with whom she came in contact, that she easily built up new friends among on-coming generations.

Mrs. Mitchell was the mother of a large family, and the lovely center of a happy, old-fashioned home life. She was the widow of the late Dr. Wesley D. Mitchell, who with his brothers, I. S. Mitchell and the late Russell Mitchell, helped to build Atlanta while constructing their own fortunes.

Mrs. Mitchell was a splendid worker

Children's Matinee At Howard Theater.

The first boys and girls' matinee of the fall season scheduled for Saturday morning at the Howard theatre promises to measure up to the usual standard of excellence. In addition to the movie program an additional treat will be furnished by Professor Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of education, who will talk on "Why We Go to School."

Professor Sutton, in whose hands the direction of the school work for Atlanta boys and girls is placed, is anxious to see every boy and girl in school and happy in school studies, and will tell many interesting features in connection with this subject.

The feature picture for this program will be "The Americano," starring Raing Douglas Fairbanks. The picture is from the novel, "Blaze of Fire," by Lyle and is a story of life in a Central American republic. Fairbanks plays the role of a young American engineer and who is responsible for the many thrilling events which occur during the course of his stay in Central America.

"The Ghost of Slumber Mountain," a Bromberg educational film, and a comedy, will complete the program.

Assisting Mrs. Porter Langston and Mrs. W. P. Lemmon in chaplaincy will be Messrs. Percy and Mrs. Clarence Coppedge.

AT WOMAN'S WINDOW

BY W. L. GEORGE

There are many situations which bring out of us all that is practical and all that is incompetent. If every young couple could find themselves in the middle of a fire, or wrecked on a desert island, they would discover in each other unexpected tendencies. Fortunately, such calamities are scarce, and it is when going on a journey that one finds out how little people know how to live. In a way women are worse travelers than men, probably because they travel less; also they dislike growing untidy, and dirty, which, as every woman knows, hardly ever troubles a man.

The woman who goes on a journey can do a great deal towards making that journey tolerable. She should believe the large placard at the side of the track, which says that the train is going to Omaha; she should not ask every porter and conductor whether it is really going to Omaha. She should not ask her husband whether he has lost the baggage check; if he has lost them he has lost them, and it will be time to find it out when they do get to Omaha. If she has a drink of ice water and becomes convinced that it is not clean, then let her not make a fuss about it, and demand that her husband should write to the president of the railroad. She has drunk the water, and there is no altering that case.

She should also make up her mind whether she wants to sit face to the engine or back. A coin can fall showing only heads or tails, and she can do no more than that. She should not prearrange herself into the men's smoking room because she has taken no pains to read the word "men." She should—oh, she should be chloroformed!

DRESS BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Dozens of New Things Continue to Appear as Hip Ornaments, But Belts Are More Often of Fabric Than Metal or Leather, Except On Short Jackets.

Paris—Oriental influence is exerted on decoration this winter. We may not get any further than that, but the straws show the wind blowing like a hurricane from the south, the place historians like to call "the cradle of civilization." Not that any one really knows where that was, but as Mr. Roosevelt used to say of scientists' proclamations on the subject: "It is their latest, uncertain guess."

The salons of the dressmakers during "collection time," as the buyers call the period, also the smart women at Deauville during the Grand Prix week, proved the prophecy that the cradle of civilization is on the verge of overturning the bellrooms of civilization. Black is worn and shown, but there is a riot of colors in clothes, decorations, accessories

rettes with the olive-shaped opening at the neck. They say it is better to offset that long oblong with two straight lines. Last summer they tried plaiting, braiding, this year they wear a design of brilliant set on black satin or velvet ribbon. It's a vast improvement on the old method. It is not attractive to have the neck opening slipping from the side. It's a bit too rakish. The barrettes hold it in place and break its length exactly right.

For these colored rosettes, to jump back a few paragraphs, they are as smart on a frock as on a hat. The flat Reboux rosette made from dozens of loops overlaying each other, continues its successful career.

On the hats they match the color of the foundation. On the frocks they scream defiance. One of the ornaments that rimmed the rosette is a group of large leaves done in rich and warmly colored beads. These are spread out over the drapery or they hold pendants of rose, green or Italian blue velvet ribbon.

Laurel, by the way, lifts her new frocks in front a trifle to show the feet, and over a glimpse of a white mousseline petticoat, lace edged, there falls a loop of the new pink velvet ribbon.

THE HOUSEHOLD

WAYS WITH MINT.

The appropriateness of mint with roast lamb is so obvious to every one that we are apt to think of mint as not being suitable at any other time than when we dine upon that meat.

Very often, of course, when you have the roast lamb you cannot get the mint, as not all grocers or vegetable dealers find it worth while to carry it on hand all the time. For this reason every housewife who can possibly do so should grow her own mint, and this she can do if she has only a square foot square that receives sunshine.

A variation from the regular mint sauce, you might make mint jelly the next time you have roast lamb. To do this you will need a small amount of mint leaves. Chop them fine. Soften a half package of gelatin in a half cup of cold water and add to a cup of granulated sugar that has been boiled with a cup of vinegar for five minutes; also add a shake of salt, and, if you desire, a little green coloring matter, which can be bought at the grocer's and is perfectly harmless. However, the jelly tastes the same without it. Having added the chopped mint, let the mixture cool, stirring occasionally so that the mint does not settle. When it starts to set, turn into a fancy mold and set near the ice until it becomes firm. Turn out on a dish and garnish with small mint leaves.

One difference to make use of mint is to mince it fine and add to cabbage salad. A little finely minced mint leaves also add tang to orange and grapefruit cup, and a little can be sprinkled over the top of orange halves when they are eaten for luncheon or dinner.

An attractive confection can be made from mint leaves. Select regular leaves and wash them for a minute only in a syrup made from one cup of sugar and a quarter cup of water. The syrup should have been boiled a few minutes before the mint leaves are added. Take the leaves from the syrup and let dry for four or five hours. Have ready an unbitten egg white. Dip each leaf in this and dust with fine granulated sugar, and let dry on the top of stove or in an open oven.

and jewelry. So simple an ornament as a hip buckle is one of the straws that shows the wind direction. Each dressmaker thinks of something new in that line whenever he goes to dinner. The next morning it appears on a gown.

Jean Patou is a colorist of marked ability and daring, who never hesitates to make splendid ornaments. He will have a large following in America as this is a season of the young man and the young woman.

Patou makes a green georgette crepe in Greek lines with barrettes over the shoulder to hold the bateau necklines in place, then adds a rosette of red and white ribbon on one hip just to show that he is confident of his color sense. The sketch shows this gown. It has another original touch in the drapery which covers the front of the gown, making one think that long sleeves are intended; when the wearer turns about, the arm is bare in the back.

TREATING A CORN

In a recent letter I was asked if I did not think that corns are natural to some people. The writer stated that she had been troubled with corns ever since she could remember, and her own children, all the age of seven and nine, each had one. My reply was to the effect that the entire blame for all their misery must be placed upon bad choice of shoes, since corns are the result of pressure and friction.

The correct shoe is one that will allow the large toe to lie straight, in the same manner as it does when you stand barefooted upon the floor. There should be ample room for all the other toes to move easily. This does not mean the shoe should be so large as after each treatment. The foot should then be bound up with absorbent cotton. The soft corn, while having a callous surface, is soft underneath and very sensitive. Such a corn should first be poulticed to remove the soreness before there is any attempt to remove it.

Having gotten rid of the corns and chosen a shoe of perfect cut (which will be the sort I have described) keep the foot healthy by giving the blood a chance to circulate without undue pressure upon any part of it and there will be no future trouble.

Nellie: If you have any tendency to grow hair on the face it is best not to use any cream without knowing exactly what it contains. This is no reflection upon the cream you are using as it may not be the cause of your trouble at all. If you do not mind the trouble of making a cream, I should be glad to mail you the formula for one that you may be quite sure will not cause hair to grow. When making the request, send a stamped addressed envelope.

Thelma: At 39 you could easily wear your hair bobbed. The thinning hair gives the impression that either your general health should be built up or your scalp needs treatment. Try massaging the scalp every day and include with this a good hair tonic twice or three times each week.

Tomorrow—Youthful Through Pronunciation.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

The best shoe that I know of is that with the moderately round toe, snug and perfect in fit around the heel and ankle, while the heel itself is broad and about an inch, or very little more in height. Such a shoe allows for perfect circulation which is the basis for perfect health in the feet as with the whole system.

However, if you have corns begin by changing the style of your shoes, thus relieving the pressure. And this is the only way to get rid of them permanently. As corns are only callous spots made up of dead particles of skin, they are easily removed. To do this, soak the feet in warm, soapy water for 15 minutes, dry thoroughly and moisten the corn with spirits of ammonia, which will soften the hard skin. Cut off some of the corn without hurting or drawing any blood, or use the antiseptic corn file which can be bought at the drug store or from any chiropodist.

Never continue either the peeling or filing to the point of soreness, as it is better to remove the corn gradually, following up the treatments each day until all of it is gone. An antiseptic salve, such as carbolic vasoline should be rubbed into the corn

MEETINGS

The regular meeting of the Home of the Friendless will be held Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Mr. Sutton to Address Home Economics Meet.

Prominent on the program of the first fall meeting of the home economics department today at 2 o'clock at the Woman's Club auditorium will be a talk by Superintendent Sutton, on "Education in the Home." Mr. Sutton has some original ideas on this subject and the talk will doubtless provide much food for thought among the mothers of the department.

In addition to the principal speaker, seated on the stage Wednesday will be the chairman of the department, Mrs. Newton C. Wing, her secretary, Mrs. William Rawling, and the two new divisional chairmen, Mrs. O. H. Matthews of the classes and Mrs. T. J. Lehigh of the book-keeping. Special guests will be the secretary and chairmen of last year's department, Mrs. W. F. Melton, Mrs. Norman Pool and Mrs. J. A. Carlisle. Little Ernest Covington, the home economics mascot, will also grace the occasion.

Other speakers on the program will be a representative of the Atlanta Electrical association, who will describe the "electric bungalow" to be exhibited on the Prado and in the "housewarming" for which the department will assist. Mrs. Wing will report as the delegate sent by the department on the home economics department features of the biennial at Chautauque: Mrs. Matthews will tell about the new features for the vocational classes, and Mrs. Delph will describe the splendid progress of the cookbook, the first edition of which is nearly exhausted. Plans for a large party to be given by the department will also be discussed.

Everybody in the club is invited to come to this meeting, and join in the discovery contest (the best household discovery), which always is most interesting and for which a prize is offered.

Argentine Club Elects Officers.

HOW TO SAVE WHEN SHOPPING

By Ruth Leigh
Author of "The Human Side of Retail Selling," "The ABC of Retailing," etc.

As every housekeeper knows, eggs are highest in price in the winter, so that some women take advantage of the spring and fall prices and buy a supply in advance. You cannot do this, however, unless you are sure of a cool place to store them, and unless you want to go to the trouble of coating each egg over so that the air cannot penetrate the shell. Some housekeepers store eggs by wrapping each one in a separate paper. If one uses any form of protection, it is essential not to use anything that will cause an unpleasant flavor, as egg shells are very porous, and the contents readily acquire odors from anything near. An excellent preservative is a 10 per cent solution of salicylate of soda.

Do you know how to test the freshness of an egg—after you have just bought it—or after it has been stored? Place two tablespoons of salt in a quart of water. Then put the egg in. If it is fresh it will sink; if it is not perfectly fresh it will show signs of rising, while a bad egg will float at once.

Surely these preservatives and this test are simple enough to enable anyone to try out, at least, the storage possibilities of eggs while prices are still moderate.

The Constitution's Novel-a-Week The Sheridan Road Mystery

BY PAUL AND MABEL THORNE
Next Week, "Julia Takes Her Chance"
By Concordia Merrell

When the night telephone operator called on duty, Marsh asked her if she knew Merton. She said she did, and that he was a very nice man. Showing her his letter of authority from Hunt, Marsh explained his purpose in asking questions.

By impressing upon her the importance of telling him all she knew, the detective induced the girl to reveal some facts of great interest to Marsh.

"These were that at 12 o'clock on the night of the strange shot in the Sheridan Road apartment, Mr. Merton had a telephone call. Contrary, she said, to her usual custom, she had listened in."

"It was a man who said his name was Nolan," she said. "From what I heard I think he tried to be charming for Mr. Merton. He said he was in an awful hole, that he was unjustly accused of theft, and that they were about to lock him up. He asked Mr. Merton if he could do anything to keep him out of this disgrace. Mr. Merton said he would try and asked where he was. Nolan said he was being detained in the apartment of a man named Ames, at some place on Sheridan road. I forgot the exact number."

"Did Mr. Merton go there then, do you know?"

"I couldn't tell you that. He simply said, 'All right,' and hung up the receiver."

"You have given me just the information I needed," said Marsh. "Your job is in no danger if you let this matter rest just between us two. If anyone else should question you, you don't know anything. And above all, forget about me. You get the idea?"

"You bet!" replied the girl, as she turned again to her switchboard.

Marsh left the hotel, well satisfied with his progress. It was now fairly well established that Richard Townsend Merton was the victim of Clark Atwood.

"Dead Men Tell No Tales."

Up to this time the case had seemed one of the most mysterious with which Marsh had ever had to deal. Now, however, while elements of mystery still remained, he had certain definite clues upon which to work.

The little notebook in his pocket might prove to be a key that would unlock the final barrier. He turned it over to a federal expert for deciphering, and then, by and then, by and then, he went to Morgan's apartment, opposite the ball park. There he gave three raps, the signal agreed upon.

Tierney, Morgan's "man Friday," opened the door, and passed out into the hall to stand guard.

"We now know two men who are undoubtedly connected with Atwood, and once we get our eyes on them they will probably lead us to the man we want," Morgan reported. "The first is Wagner, the 'con' man you saw in the hotel lobby. The other is the man who attacked Miss Atwood. Newman, as best answering the description, I took a copy of the photograph to Miss Atwood at her hotel, and while she was not sure, she said it was enough like the man she saw in the same person."

"Now, this 'Baldy' Newman is a well-known West Side gunman, and we know his usual hangouts. He's a little bit of a shrimp, but an expert with his gun. We found that in nearly two years he has shown up in only twice at his old hangouts. That time was up in a significant way with your story, Marsh. The last time was early on Monday night, when he showed a well of money and boasted that he was going to pull off a real job that night. We got this from the bartender, who was mighty sore at 'Baldy.' It seems he slipped a five-dollar bill off his belt to pay for drinks, and the bartender still has this bill as a souvenir. It was a counterfeit."

"Of course, there's enough in all that to tie 'Baldy' up with our case, even if Miss Atwood had not been fairly confident of her identification."

"Now," continued Morgan, "there's the photograph of the hand marks on the dining room table in the Ames apartment. Ordinarily, marks of that kind would tell very little, but there's a scar on the right hand. It is not an ordinary scar, either, and the man whose hand we find it on is pretty sure to be one of the men who was in the Ames apartment that night."

"High-class crooks like Atwood, while they work alone, are often hard to get, but sooner or later they grow ambitions. They want to be the brains of an organization. Then they call in second-rate crooks like 'Baldy' and Wagner, to do the dirty work. These men are never so clever, and some day, through them, the police get their hands on the man higher up. I think, Marsh, that in this case that is what we are going to do."

Morgan was sitting in his favorite chair by the table. Marsh was seated at the front of the room with his back to the window.

FREEMAN CLOSES DEKALB CAMPAIGN

Produces Letter From Commissioner Nash, Stating His Records Are Clear of All Fault.

As the chief speaker in two rousing political rallies, at East Atlanta and at Edgewood, R. J. Freeman, candidate for commissioner of roads and revenue of DeKalb county, wound up his campaign last Tuesday night, following which he and his active supporters expressed confidence that he would carry the election today by a large majority.

In his two addresses last night the former commissioner briefly reviewed the circumstances of his defeat, and claimed the right to a vote of vindication inasmuch as "every charge that was made against me at that time or since has been proven untrue."

Reads Nash Letter.
In last night's address Mr. Freeman read a letter he had received from Mr. Nash within the last few days, as follows:

"Mr. R. J. Freeman, Dear Sir—Your auditor has cleared the records relative to the insurance on the court house to my satisfaction. Yours truly, L. T. Nash, commissioner."

"I told Mr. Nash," said the speaker, "that if he didn't write me a letter to that effect, for me to use in clearing my name from the various situations and false implications, or else have me arrested for embezzlement, I would have him put in jail for criminal slander—and here's the letter."

"No man," he continued, "can prove that I have ever misappropriated, misapplied or misused a dollar of the county's money or a dollar's worth of the property of DeKalb county—and God knows they've tried hard enough to prove that I did—and the records, as revealed by my own and Mr. Nash's auditors working together, show that the county is in the neighborhood of $100,000 deeper in debt today than when I turned over the office over to Mr. Nash, in spite of the fact that Mr. Nash has raised the tax rate to $1.25 as against my rate of $1.10, and of the further fact that during the last four years of my administration I had to buy materials and supplies at inflated wartime prices."

Charges Extravagance.
Mr. Freeman charged that Mr. Nash has been inordinately extravagant and wasteful in the expenditure of the proceeds from the $700,000 highway bond issue, voted by the county the year Mr. Freeman relinquished the commission; and, he declared, all of the hard-surface highway mileage we've got to show for that money is the Stone Mountain and the Emory University roads, not fifteen miles all told, and there is less than $200 of the money left unspent.

The contest between Mr. Freeman and Commissioner Nash has been one of the most spirited political campaigns that have been conducted in this county for years, completely overshadowing in public interest that waged by a field of eight candidates for the legislature, three to be nominated today.

Most of the public meetings held by these two contestants have been attended by both, each given an opportunity to hear what his opponent said and to reply from the same platform.

In closing each of his two meetings last night Mr. Freeman expressed the hope that "after I am nominated tomorrow that will end it this time, and I hope my friends usually are ended in Georgia, and that I will be elected next November."

Political Frame-up Is Baylor's Charge
In Columbus Arrest

Characterizing his recent arrest in Columbus, Ga., as a "political frame-up," H. Bedinger Baylor, of Atlanta, candidate for governor, issued a statement Tuesday evening on all his friends to resent this action at the polls in the election Wednesday.

"Press reports of the incident at Columbus were erroneous," Mr. Baylor said. "I was arrested on complaint of some citizens. The whole thing was a political frame-up. I was detained two hours and was then released. I hope my friends usually are ended in Georgia, and that I will be elected next November."

INCOME TAX SCHOOL WILL BE HELD HERE

A week's instruction in details pertaining to income tax work and other matters relating to the department of internal revenue will be conducted, beginning Monday, for thirty field deputies in the state of Georgia, it was announced Tuesday by J. T. Rose, collector, in charge of the state.

The courses will be divided to permit the deputies to familiarize themselves with activities of the department during the day and stand examinations in the evening. The school will be under the supervision of Mr. Rose and will be held in the federal building.

WOODWARD ASKS NUMBERED BALLOT

In Letter to Haunson and Public Statement, Says That Twelve - Twenty Club Seeks to Dominate.

In a letter directed Tuesday to John Haunson, chairman of the city democratic executive committee, James G. Woodward, opposing Councilman Walter A. Sims in the runoff contest for mayor, renewed his demand that the ballots be numbered at the second election, September 20, and also demanded official representation at all the polling precincts.

"In the interest of honesty at the ballot box, I ask in the name of the people, that you return to the time honored custom of numbering all ballots cast," said Mr. Woodward. "That custom is the only sure means of preventing irregularities and giving the people an opportunity to detect and correct fraud at the ballot box. This is very important."

Mr. Woodward also issued a statement to the public in which he warned:

"This election is of very important concern to you. All of the actions for the past 10 days, at least, look suspicious and I entreat you to be on your guard on the 20th, instead of the 21st. You want to vote down the Twelve-Twenty club and its candidate. Down with the politics that is fostered by the Twelve-Twenty club. Down with a fight of the kind that has been going on in this city. The next two years is a critical position for Atlanta. You have $200,000,000 of revenue to expend. You want a man with some record of expending the public's money."

Penal Code.
Section 447, penal code of Georgia: "Definition of Primary. Primary elections shall be construed to mean elections by ballot for the nomination of a candidate or candidates for office as opposed to nominations by convention, to run at subsequent elections, to be held under the laws of this state, county or municipal office."

Under that law, no manager can serve unless he is sworn and under that law no manager can act, unless he is sworn and under those different sections, it would appear that it would be impossible for him under his oath to receive any ballot only by numbers.

It looks like a little bit strange that there is such a desire to hold an election without numbering ballots. That is the only safeguard against irregularities and fraud. The people's attention is seriously called to these conditions and if a legal election is held the laws will have to be complied with. This condition is true of the pollster under the secret auspices of the Twelve-Twenty club. Will the people stand for it?

CHURCH LOSES INJUNCTION SUIT

An injunction recently granted against the city board of education on petition of trustees of the Calvary Methodist Episcopal church restraining the erection of a portable school near an alley adjacent to the church property was dissolved Tuesday in superior court.

The decision of the court declared that the board of education had shown that the portable school would not obstruct the alley in any way so as to prevent its use by the church, in as full a manner as before the structure is built.

BUSINESS HOUSES ON HOSPITAL SITE

The old Wesley Memorial hospital property at Courtland street and Auburn avenue will be converted by the Service company, a negro real estate organization, into a hotel, theater and store building.

The Methodist church sold the property to the Service company when it decided to build its new quarters at Emory university. The old hospital building is five stories high, and sets back some distance from Courtland street. Ten stores will be added in front of the main building.

SAYS HUSBAND TRIED TO MURDER FAMILY

In a suit for divorce, alimony and custody of her small children, Mrs. Mattie Lou Mullis Tuesday charged her husband, Horace Mullis, with an attempt to take her life.

On the night of their separation, she alleges, Mullis entered her room, and thinking that she was sleeping soundly, turned on the gas. She waked in time to save her own life and the life of her small children. She is represented by Attorney H. W. McLarty.

HARMON IS ELECTED SUPREME JABBERWOCK

At the annual meeting of the national social organization of lumbermen held in Detroit last week, C. B. Harmon of Atlanta was elected to fill the office of "Supreme Jabberwock." Eight other officers were elected one of them being W. S. Dickason, of Kansas City, Mo., who is to hold for the ensuing year the office of "Snark."

Mr. Harmon is the secretary and treasurer of the Southern Sash, Door and Millwork Manufacturers' association of Atlanta.

Miss Eva Owens Returned to Home At Ingleside

Leaving home Sunday after a "pat" with her father, Miss Eva Owens, 18 years old, of Ingleside, was restored to her own fireside Tuesday after police and parents had searched two days for her.

The girl was found by her father who searched diligently for his runaway daughter ever since Sunday when taking his car she drove to Atlanta, left the machine at a garage at 60 Houston place, and disappeared.

She was traced, her father J. M. Owens, said to a highly respectable Atlanta hotel where she registered after she had disposed of the car. She was alone.

She told the police who aided Mr. Owens in the search that she had left her home because she was "tired of it," and that her father had been cruel and angry over a trifling incident.

"It was his attitude," she said, that prompted me to come to Atlanta."

Members of the family say the girl had no reason for making such a statement as her home life was ideal, and everything had been done to make her surrounding most pleasant.

FISH GETS SUPPORT OF TRAVELING MAN

Denial of a statement that traveling men of the state are supporting Judge Russell for chief justice is made in a letter from E. B. Hornady, made public by Fish headquarters Tuesday.

I noticed with some surprise a statement coming from Judge Russell's headquarters that the traveling men were supporting Judge Russell and predicting his win as chief justice of our supreme court.

I happen to be a traveling man of very considerable experience and acquaintance and it so happens that every one of the traveling men whom I have heard express themselves as for Judge Fish and predict his reelection. Certainly this is true over the southern portion of the state covered by me, and I have heard no intimation from other parts of the state to the contrary, except this statement coming from Judge Russell's headquarters.

My observation is that they realize the importance of electing Judge Fish in account of his experience and ability to fill the office of chief justice in our opinion, the most important place to be filled at this election, September 12, 1922.

KENNON MOTT, JR., IS NOT AS BADLY HURT AS THOUGHT

Mrs. Kennon Mott, mother of the young Atlanta attorney who was assaulted and stabbed several times by four negroes in Los Angeles, Cal., Sunday night, received a telegram Tuesday night in which she was advised that her son's injuries were not so serious as was first reported.

While Mr. Mott is confined to his bed in a Los Angeles hotel, his condition was not considered as dangerous and he will be able to be out in the next few days, the wire stated.

Mr. C. E. Covey, of Los Angeles, aunt of Mr. Mott, was at his bedside and was the source of the wire to Mrs. Mott, it was stated.

The stabbing of Mr. Mott occurred following an altercation on a Los Angeles street car, it was stated in dispatches. During the fight Mr. Mott was stabbed several times.

Owens to Address Methodist Sunday School Institute

Rev. W. C. Owens, of Nashville, Tenn., will address the Sunday school institute to be held at the St. John's Methodist church Wednesday, September 13. Dr. La Prade and Dr. Eakes, heads of the North and South Atlanta districts, will preside over the meeting. Rev. Owens is superintendent of young people's and adult work of the Southern Methodist church.

Following the meeting a dinner will be given the matriculates of the school by the ladies of the church, who have also prepared an interesting program for the occasion. Rev. C. M. Meeks, the pastor of St. John church, will act as host. Miss Maria Parkham will speak on "The Needs of the Child." Other talks will be "Jesus as an Ideal Teacher," by Rev. M. Pierce, and "Atlanta Standard Training School," by W. D. Thomson.

COMMENTS ATLANTA VETERANS' BUREAU

John H. Dykes, chairman of the national rehabilitation committee of the Disabled Veterans of the World War, after investigating the Atlanta district of the disabled veterans' organization, declared Tuesday that the local bureau ranks first in point of efficiency and service over the 14 districts in the United States.

Mr. Dykes has just completed an inspection tour of the government hospitals at Oteen, N. C., and Greenville, S. C., and asserted that conditions in these hospitals are in better shape than anywhere throughout the entire country.

The Atlanta office, which is headquarters for district No. 5, including the states of Georgia, Tennessee, North and South Carolina, has the highest rating in efficiency in handling and adjusting compensation claims of any district in the country, Mr. Dykes said.

Applaud we must, for civic deeds, who mows his grass and cuts his weeds.

In medicine, as in other professions, the day of rough guessing is fast passing.

RUSSELL CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS TODAY

On the eve of the state primary, Judge Richard B. Russell, candidate for chief justice of the supreme court of Georgia, expressing confidence in his nomination, made the following statement to his friends:

As the campaign closes I want to thank my many loyal friends for their generous interest and support. I am sure they will carry me to victory in tomorrow's primary. I am informed, through published statements emanating from the political headquarters of my opponent, that he will have representatives at practically every polling precinct in Georgia. I have made no such arrangement as this. I have always preferred to leave my candidacy to the untrammeled voice of all the people, but my opponents and his friends would not have it that way.

It is necessary, therefore, for me simply to do so, to be on guard and to see to it, in as far as they can, that no unfair methods are attempted or employed against me. Partisan representatives at the polls are liable, in their enthusiasm, to go almost to any extent in behalf of their candidate. All I ask is a fair ballot, and will deeply appreciate whatever effort my friends may be able to make to see that it is so maintained.

I enter the primary with full confidence that I shall be, by the will of the people, the next chief justice of the supreme court of Georgia.

The proof of the water's in the drinking.

Mrs. Charles B. Counts of Union, S. C., a special summer student at the Atlanta School of Oratory and Expression, has returned to her home to engage in Eastern Star work. Mrs. Counts gave two readings at meetings of the Eastern Star while in Atlanta and also appeared in the recital of last Thursday, at which time she artistically rendered "Home Sweet Home" by E. A. Guest.

Mrs. Mildred Harrison, head of the music department of the conservatory, has arranged a course in harmony and music appreciation which will be offered with the opening of the fall session.

J. E. McWilliam, special summer student, has resumed his regular school course at Dahlonega.

Professor R. G. Roberts, special summer student, will enter the state university, while Rev. L. F. Peek will resume his theological course at Mercer university.

Mrs. Leland C. Evans, instructor in platform art, is spending a short vacation with relatives and friends in Cincinnati.

Is a Man Who Has Not Even Been Admitted to Practice Before the High Courts of the State Qualified to Be Your Superior Court Judge?

Mr. Carl F. Hutcheson, candidate for Judge of the Superior Court of this county, has never been admitted to the Bar of the Supreme Court of Georgia.

He has never been admitted to the Bar of the Court of Appeals of Georgia.

No lawyer can appear in a case in either of these courts without being a member of the bar of the court.

MR. CARL HUTCHESON HAS NEVER ARGUED A CASE BEFORE THE SUPREME COURT OF GEORGIA.

HE HAS NEVER ARGUED A CASE BEFORE THE COURT OF APPEALS OF GEORGIA.

We have verified these facts from the indexes and records of the two high courts of this State. These indexes and records are open to any member of the public who wishes to use them.

Friendship and political alignments should be disregarded in selecting a judge.

A lawyer who has never been admitted to practice in the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals, and who is opposed by practically all of the members of his own profession can not be a suitable man to put in charge of the Superior Court of this County.

MAKE UP YOUR MIND FOR YOURSELF ABOUT THIS RACE, AND VOTE FOR THE BEST MAN FOR THE PLACE.

Ask any lawyer you meet on the street.

St. Louis Advances.

St. Louis, September 12.—For the second time in two days St. Louis came from behind in the tail end of the game to defeat Detroit. The locals took today's game, 8 to 6, after trailing the Tigers up to the seventh inning and, by virtue of their victory and New York's idleness, advanced to within one game of first place.

Sisler was out of the lineup, because of a sprained muscle in his right shoulder, suffered in yesterday's game by reaching over a wide throw from Gerber after a being hit by a pitched ball in practice. He will be out of the game for a week, and probably longer, it was said. He is unable to raise his arm above the shoulder.

Work on temporary bases was started in the park today and they will be completed in time for the three-game series with the Yankees, which begins Saturday.

The Familiar Quotations Pastime

Doesn't cost you a single thing to enter, and requires no more than a few hours of the spare time you would ordinarily waste during the next sixty days.

All we want you to do is to exercise your ingenuity and imagination in helping us find the "best" title answers to some mighty interesting pictures we are publishing from day to day. In exchange, we will award you a capital prize of $1,000—cold, hard cash. Look over the prize list. Don't you think it worth while to join our new Familiar Quotations Pastime? Then—GET BUSY! We guarantee barrels of fun. The Pastime is an education in itself, let alone the prizes at stake.

You Can Win $1,000

The First Prize of $1,000 will go to the man, woman or child who picks the "best" and most appropriate quotations as titles for our 60 Pastime Pictures. Fifteen awards will be made, in all. GO GET THE BEST!—This is a contest where everyone is on an equal footing, absolutely. Good common sense and judgment will WIN. No matter who or what you are, the Pastime will be well worth your time.

Our Title Catalogue Will Help You

For the convenience of helping you select the most appropriate titles for our 60 Pastime Pictures, The Constitution has compiled a catalogue of nearly 2,000 Familiar Quotations. The answers to our 60 pictures are in this booklet. We are selling the booklet at 40 cents, which is reasonable, considering the valuable features in it. Each booklet contains coupons entitling you to the first thirty Pastime Pictures. Many hours of research will be saved by tracing your suggestions in this catalogue.

How to Play the Game

Sixty Pastime Pictures will be published, one each day. Save all your pictures until the END of the game. Don't send them to The Constitution until we notify you through this paper.

You are entitled to three "guesses" for each picture. But you must write each selection of quotation on a SEPARATE Answer Form such as accompanies the picture. It would be wise to indicate your First, Second or Third choice.

IF YOU WANT TO—you can send in at the close of the Pastime as many as SIX complete sets of answers. By "set" we mean pictures number 1 to 60. This will give you plenty of opportunity to choose titles for all the illustrations. However, each set of answers will be considered separately, and on its own merits.

Please Study These Rules

1. The Familiar Quotations Pastime is open to any man, woman, boy or girl who is a resident of Georgia or adjoining states, except employees or relatives of employees of The Constitution. No entrance fees are required.
2. The Familiar Quotations Pastime consists of sixty pictures, one appearing in The Constitution each day. Each contestant may submit three title answers for each picture: each on a separate answer form. Selection of titles will be found in the official Familiar Quotations Pastime Catalogue.
3. The Catalogue of Quotations may be consulted at the office of The Constitution, or at any public library in the prescribed territory of this Pastime. Participants may also purchase copies of this Catalogue at the office of The Constitution at 40 cents per copy.
4. Each person may participate only as one contestant, and only in his or her own name. However, each participant may submit as many as six complete sets of title answers. Each set of answers will be judged on its own merits. A duplicate list of the selections submitted should be retained by the contestant for self-checking purposes. Full instructions regarding this duplicate list will appear in The Constitution at the close of the Pastime.
5. Three methods may be followed in preparing answers: (1) Each picture published during the 60 days of the Pastime will be accompanied by an official Answer Form, with blank ruled lines for the inscription of your choice of title. (2) Participants may submit handwritten (not traced) facsimiles of each picture and answer form on sheets of white paper 5 1/2 inches. (3) Quotations may be submitted in the convenient Familiar Quotations Answer Book.
6. Selections of quotations must not be sent in until the close of the Pastime. Then each participant is to mail or deliver his own set of selections according to instructions appearing in The Constitution. Quotations may be written with pen or pencil, or type written. After the publication of the sixtieth picture, sufficient time will be given contestants to prepare their sets of selections before submitting them.
7. The winners of the Familiar Quotations Pastime will be selected by three judges having no connection with The Constitution. These judges will be persons of the highest integrity and good judgment. It is understood that participants entering the Familiar Quotations Pastime accept their decisions as final and conclusive.
8. Then fifteen awards in this Pastime will be made to the fifteen highest ranking answers, on the basis of having achieved the most appropriate or "best" selections of quotations. If there is an equality between two or more answers a decision will be made by the judges between the tying answers according to superiority in the following requirements: (a) The least number of incorrect selections (the titles which are not "best") (b) The position of the contestant's "best" answers—whether first, second or third choice. In the event of an ultimate tie, each tying contestant will receive an equal prize.
9. Use exactly the same form and spelling of quotations in your selections as you find listed in the Familiar Quotations Pastime Catalogue.
10. Any contestant may have his friends assist him in selecting titles for the pictures. However, only one prize will be awarded to any one household; nor will prizes be awarded to more than one of any group outside the family, who have worked together. The judges reserve the right to discard any set of quotations not complying with the rules and where unfairness is obvious.

Tennis Stars Off Game, But No Up-Sets Staged; Owens Beats Van Winkle

Bell Gives Manning of South Carolina, Southern Runner-up, Hard Battle is Finally Eliminated 6-2, 4-6, 6-3.

The favorites in the Georgia state tennis tournament were again victorious in the second round of play on the East Lake courts Tuesday afternoon. Many good matches were played but the players as a whole seemed to be off their form. The remaining matches of the first round that were postponed from Monday were played off.

Play in the doubles was started, but only a few of the matches were played, because some of the players could not be present.

In the singles, Frank Owens, the southern champion, easily defeated Ed Van Winkle, in straight sets. The score was 6-3, 6-3. "Hop" was off his usual form, because of a sore arm.

During the second set, Van Winkle was leading him to 2-1 in games but "Hop" rallied and drove Van Winkle to the back line and then worked a neat placing game. Owens' serving was also considerably off for in the second set he lost one game by serving many doubles.

Manning. The Greenville, S. C., runner-up, the southern tournament, won his set over L. A. Bell, of Atlanta, after three sets of hard tennis. That was the best single set of the afternoon. The scores were 6-2, 4-6, 6-3. Manning was not playing the same tennis that he was a week ago, according to the reports of his fellow players. He is having trouble in his driving. Bell, on the other hand, played a consistent game all the way but the experience of Manning was too much for him.

Covington was figured by many in the tournament to beat Knox, but Knox rallied after losing the first set and won the next two. The scores of the sets were 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

The results of the singles matches were: Ed Van Winkle beat J. B. Stewart, 6-3, 6-2; F. C. Owens beat Van Winkle 6-3, 6-3; A. M. Kennedy beat Jack Spratt 6-1, 7-5; T. M. Wilson beat M. Lockhart, Jr., 6-3, 6-3; E. V. Carter, Jr. beat E. P. Morrison, 6-3, 6-3.

WADE'S LOSS HURTS VANDY

Nashville, Tenn., September 12.—(Special).—Possibility that former Captain Pink Wade will be with the Commodores this year only in spirit has applied a thicker coat of bluing to the Vandy line outlook. While all hope has not been abandoned by the black and gold mentors that the 1921 leader will be coaxed back, there is every indication that he will be among the missing. For he has already accepted a position as coach for the Tennessee Industrial school, and there is no doubt that his tutoring chores with the pursuit of the tangles of law.

Pink Wade has another football year at his disposal and great pressure is being brought to bear upon him to apply it against the eighty situation existing in the Commodore line prospects. His decision to answer the call would act as a derelict for a vast amount of worry existing over the tackle problem, which just now is the greatest menace to the Commodores. In the event he should sacrifice his coaching chances to accept the clammy line situation, the former captain would be shifted to a tackle station and some of the lighter material employed the guard line. There is a bulk can be easier spared than in the tackle gaps, and the poundage of Pink Wade for that reason would be welcomed with gleeful acclaim.

His Experience Needed.

Not only would the brawn of Pink Wade be a highly desired asset, but his experience in the line would create a most stabilizing effect. For the former captain is an alert type of mole-skinner, polished in the McGugin system of play, is a sterling defensive performer, and would serve as a stimulant in the line to the newcomers.

Should he adhere to his intention of devoting his time to coaching D. McGugin and W. Wade will have an additional worry upon their hands. "Fatty" Lawrence and Garland Morrow will be temporarily entrusted with the guard stations, in all probability while the new recruits, "Tex" Bradford, "Tot" McCullough and Kelly will scramble for the tackle stations. Kelly served as snapper back at Kentucky, and it is within the bounds of possibility that he may be given that berth as a Commodore and Alf Sharpe introduced to the mysteries of tackle play. In short, there is no end to the shifts that black and gold tutors may work out in their efforts to find an answer to the dilemma in the line.

KIWANIS WILL AID WAYCROSS GOLF CLUB

Waycross, Ga., September 12.—(Special).—The Kiwanis club at its meeting recently, pledged the club to the task of completing the membership drive for the Waycross Golf Club. Sixteen additional members are needed to complete the required number of 60 members, which it will be necessary to secure in order that work on the course shall start at once.

A committee composed of Dr. B. H. Minchew, chairman; Dr. W. D. Dixon, E. E. Trexler, J. T. Watt, and O. T. Waring, president of the club, will immediately open the campaign to secure the required number of members.

LEGION SHOW LOOKS GOOD

The most promising and complete program that has been offered in Atlanta in a long time is to be pulled off under the direction of the American Legion, Saturday, at Lakewood. It is going to be just one big event after another, beginning at 2 o'clock, and lasting until midnight. There will be horse racing, both harness and running, Bob Lutton and Johnny Aiken will contest in a grudge auto race. A reproduction of the St. Mihiel battle, boxing bouts, automobile show, and a dance are other attractions.

The event of the day will be staged at 8 o'clock Saturday night. On the program will be a realistic reproduction of the St. Mihiel battle will be pulled. This is going to be a thriller. With the aid of hundreds of trained soldiers from Fort McPherson under the command of officers who took part in that drive, the American Legion promises to show the public just how it was done.

The battle promises to be real in appearance and sound, for in place of the usual bunch of fireworks that go with a sham battle, artillery, machine guns, etc., will be employed.

A number of horses owned by Walter Capner will be on the track, and an excellent racing card is billed.

JOHN STATION SCHEDULED FOR RESERVE TECH CENTER

May Be Used in Case of Injury to Frye—Signal Drills Start.

There seems to be a very likely probability that John Station will be used as a reserve center for Tech this year. This possibility was brought to light when Coach Alexander, Tuesday, lined John up as the center of one of the squads running signals.

John was seen snapping the ball several times during the spring season, but at that time little was thought of the possibility of his filling in at that position. However, all during that period he was constantly being subject to injuries. The ball game with accuracy, at the same time getting into the swing that the centers must employ in executing the jump shift.

This fall, he has been working out with Claire Frye and Fleetwood, doing a little snapper back work in addition to the work at end. Yesterday, when the teams lined up for signal drill, John was given his first signal drill in the modeling of the 1922 machine.

General Plan.

Such a move seems to be entirely in keeping with the general plan of action this fall. Frye, who will not doubt be the regular center, is now his third year of football for Tech. Last season, playing as understudy to Dad Amis, he made a great name for himself, and won his letter. Frye is a man of proven ability, but even his signal drill is not perfect. Frye is rather light and a hard game at full speed would tax him to the limit.

It is the best plan to have reserves, hence the training of John Station. He will probably be used as a reserve, to fill in, in case Frye should suffer an injury, or for some reason be unable to play.

John played center for years in high school, and should have all the preliminary training necessary. That was in 1916 and 17 at Boy's High school in Atlanta. Playing center in high school and playing the kind of center that is called for at Tech are two different propositions, but he should, after a time, be able to get by.

One step nearer to the ultimate end was accomplished yesterday when Coach Alexander gave his squads a little dope on tackling. He spent some time explaining the straight-on and twist tackles, and he pointed out the candidates off for some actual demonstration. As yet, he has not allowed the mob to get turned loose on the dummies but he is ripening them up for that in a few days.

Running Signals.

Hunt and Welch are still running at fullback on the two team running signals. McQuetter, Davis, and Godwin, other possibilities for that job, have not as yet been transferred to the squad running signals. Since it is possible to transfer to reserve center, there is little possibility that he will be tried at fullback, as was suggested in the newspapers some time ago.

It is a startling and significant fact that all but six men on the varsity squad are seniors, and will leave Tech at the end of this academic year. This will leave the team of 1923 in a somewhat depleted condition unless some wonderful material comes up from this or last year's freshmen team. Monk Nabell, John Station, Cornell Caldwell, Urey and McConnell are the six. If Murphy and Moore come over, this will swell the list of juniors or under, to eight. At that, there is not so much leeway for 1923.

Both teams running signals at the present time are composed entirely of men who had experience in at least one game last season. For that reason, the best men in both branches of the signal work. All the men are familiar with the shift, and there is no necessity of stopping to explain how it is done.

MRS. WILLIAMS MEDALIST IN NEWMAN GOLF TOURNEY

Three Other Atlanta Women Qualify in First Flight—Course in Fine Shape.

By Miss Mariana Goldsmith.

Newman, Ga., September 12.—(Special).—With Mrs. T. T. Williams as medalist and three other Atlanta women as first flighters, the qualifying round of the women's invitation golf tournament was played here this morning.

Mrs. Atkinson was second with 96 and Mrs. Beck, of Atlanta, third, with 101. Mrs. Williams went in at a 46 and came back with a 47, making a total of 93 for the eighteen holes. Her tee and iron shots were up to their usual high degree of accuracy, but her putting was unusually brilliant. On two occasions she sank 30-foot putts and this dazzling streak stayed with her throughout the day's play.

Make First Flight.

The other Atlanta women to make the first flight were Mrs. L. H. Beck, Mrs. Clarence Bradley and Mrs. Henry Clay Burr. According to the scores coming in today Tuesday, the Atlantans represent in all probability the most powerful of the visiting teams. However, Mrs. W. Y. Atkinson, as leader of the local force, can easily vie with the best, and turned in a strong 96 in the qualifying round.

Matches will be played Wednesday and Thursday and the tournament will be brought to a close Thursday night with the presentation of trophies.

Tomorrow's matches will bring together the favorites. Mrs. Williams with a handicap of 15 will meet another Atlanta, Mrs. H. C. Burr, whose handicap is 27. This is due to a truly match as the handicaps put the contestants about equal.

Mrs. Burr appears to be somewhat stronger in her match play than she is in her medal.

Driving, Putting and Approaching.

A driving, approaching and putting contest was staged during the afternoon, and proved to bring several of the fair participants into the limelight. In the driving contest, Mrs. Atkinson, outdid her opponents by sending three out of three balls straight and far down the fairway. In the approaching and putting contest, Mrs. L. H. Beck carried off all honors.

Course in Good Shape.

The tricky little course is in especially good condition and both Mrs. Atkinson and Mrs. Lindquist, the young professional, should be congratulated upon how smoothly everything is going off. Even old Sol bearing down with September's accustomed warmth has Newman breezes to contend with.

Tuesday afternoon a true southern barbecue, prepared by that unrivaled Harrington Carpenter, was given in honor of the visiting players. This only sustained the reputation of this hospitable town.

French to Chattanooga.

Chattanooga, Tenn., September 12. W. E. French, majority of the army football team last fall, has entered the University of Chattanooga and will play with the local eleven this fall. It was announced here today.

Northcliffe's Estate.

London, September 12.—(By the Associated Press).—Lord Northcliffe's will, which was sworn to today for provisional probate purposes, leaves a gross estate valued at $2,000,000, with net personality of the same amount.

GOOD ROAD FOR MRS. GAUT

Best Duel of Fine Card at Ponce de Leon is Staged By Battling Nick and Cy Jackson, Battle Ending a Draw.

BY FUZZY WOODRUFF.

Freddie Boorde, who does his road work in a silver, met at first-class Batting Barnett, who does similar labor in the good old-fashioned way. Mr. Barnett not yet having reached silver-owning plottocracy. The meeting was last night at Ponce de Leon park with football weather prevailing for everybody but Freddie. Freddie found it hotter than the hinges of Gehenna.

In their last meeting Barnett all but knocked Freddie out and got a draw. This time he took no chances. He all but knocked Freddie out several times. In fact nothing but Freddie's lion heart and ring craft kept him from being knocked out. The referee, in fact, was forced to stop the fight after the fifteenth round, after the referee had turned around in the second and all but knocked Nick kicking.

Nick's Time in Third.

It was Nick's time in the third and Cy again heard the birds sing as the going rang. In the fourth though he had Nick sitting down and staring blankly about half the time. Round 5 found Nick out in the front again and Cy something horrible to behold.

The sixth round permitted Cy to get on top again and Nick had to be carried from the ring, while Cy got an ovation given few Atlanta fighters. Sammy Sandow, the referee, couldn't do anything but call it a draw, which was standing up with the crowd.

In the opener Charley White, I believe he calls himself, and somebody else who calls himself something, palpatably faked a one round knockout.

Boorde Goes Down.

In the eighth round he switched his attack to the Boorde jaw and Boorde took a nine count. Again in the ninth round he switched his attack to the Boorde mat. How he got up, no one, and that includes Boorde, knows. But he got up. He was down again briefly in the tenth round, but he wasn't down he was all but out in the eleventh.

After that Barnett tired perceptibly and though Freddie could do nothing but hang on he was never again in imminent danger of being stopped. Freddie may have learned a lesson from the fight, but he wasn't. He would have taught anybody but Freddie that a flivver isn't essential to a boxer's training, but you never can tell about

ARMY GRIDDERS TO TRAIN HERE

BY M. D. GLEASON.

The Army and Marine football game scheduled for November 10, has caused much interest in army and marine circles, both in Atlanta and throughout the country, and some of the best men in both branches of the service will participate in this big game.

At this early date 32 men stationed at various posts throughout the country, with good football records before and after they entered the army, are being considered as good candidates for the army team, which will train at Fort McPherson.

Fort Mac, itself having several good players and three star players in Goldsmith, Beaulieu and Riska.

Under the agreement reached last night between President John Martin, of the Southern, and President Donk Roberts, of the Texas, the Fort Mac team will play the first game of the season Saturday night at Ponce de Leon.

Brickley's professional team last fall, and beat them in Brooklyn.

"Goldy" is the big fellow that joined the fort team in June and was the best all-around athlete in the fort. He is a good runner, a good passer, a good kicker, and a good punter.

Several other of the boys at the fort play a splendid game and are going to try hard to make the team.

Several men who are now at Camp McClellan and will be at Fort Mac in a few days have been named as some of the best football teams in the country.

The extraordinary pride in the different branches of Uncle Sam's land and sea soldiers as displayed by Captain Bolling, of the army, and Captain Bowers, of the marines, make it very plain that these two officials will each endeavor to see that his branch of the service he represents will have the best football team on the field at Ponce de Leon November 10.

The marines will train at Paris Island and will begin training there in a few days. Reports reaching Atlanta state that much enthusiasm has been manifested all up and down the Atlanta seacoast about this game, and the prospect of getting a trip to Atlanta is making the best men in the fort to try to place on the team.

As this game has the fullest co-operation of the army and marine officials, backed up by the civic and business leaders of Atlanta, it promises to be one of the biggest days in Atlanta's football history.

RAIL AND LIBERTY NEW YORK BOND MARKET HEDGING CAUSES

DECLINE IN WHEAT

Chicago, Ill., September 12.—Hedging sales from both the north west and southwest, together with lack of speculative demand, led to declining prices today for wheat. The market closed unsettled, half cent to 11-8c net lower, with December $1.00 7-8 to $1.01, and May, $1.06 to $1.06 1-8. Corn finished unchanged to 5-8c@3-4c down, oats off 1-4@3-8 to 1-2c, and provisions varying from 15c setback to 7c advance.

densely shown at the opening, whereas the valleys soon began to sag, and throughout the season the crop was under a great deal of stress to have but little power to rally. The season soon became eventful, however, the result of an increase of the crop movement in the northwest was making itself felt throughout the country. The fact was emphasized by the word that the yield of the northwest wheat area was officially estimated at 388,733,000 bushels, the largest total since 1915.

The first call for U. S. hard winter wheat to go to Europe developed as a result of the decline in prices. Sales of wheat to Europe here to exporters were estimated at 1,000,000 bushels, and the seaboard area was advised of 500,000 bushels taken by the foreign market.

Corn and oats were easier with the

"Branded."

(At the Forsyth.)
The Forsyth Players have made a most decidedly bold departure from their regular routine this week and are presenting a drama that calls for some extremely emotional acting and they are doing it in a manner that would do justice to any name in the dramatic world. "Branded" is only supposed to be a stage play but it is really more than that. It is a chapter out of regular everyday life and portrays events that take place in the world daily and for that reason has an unusual amount of heart appeal and interest. It carries a thrill and a punch in every line and sends you away from the theater with something to ponder and think over.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Lyric.)
The box office at the Lyric theater has been doing since the first performance by patrons desiring the best of the Lyric. Keith Vaudeville is a very graceful little girl who does the reckless bowery dance in the Martin revue. She possesses one of those entrancing personalities that rustle over the footlights and makes a personal appeal to every individual member of an audience. However, vaudeville is not a strange thing. One name in an act is generally sufficient, two names to an act are more numerous plenty. When there are more than two names in an act, it is generally called "and company." That's the fate of this pretty girl.

Low Vaudeville.

(At the Grand.)
Jack Morris and Dolores Lee in "Married" and one of the best of this week's offerings at the Grand. The dancing of the best of the best in this clever team have ever presented. Marcus Lee is a comedian of ability far above the average and his partner, Miss Lee, achieves comedy success by reason of her unusual proportions. Miss Lee carries around about 350 pounds of flesh, but notwithstanding her size, she dances her way into popularity. The act contains many bright sayings and pleasing song numbers.

The Maxwell quintet continues to please with harmony songs and comedy. All of the company have good voices and present their offering in a scene representing "A Night at the Club."

Other acts are Paul Kleist and company in "The Land of Dreams," Ryan and Moore in "Breezy Moments," and Miller and Murphy in character dances.

The feature of the screen bill is Will Rogers in "A Poor Relation."

"Blood and Sand."

(At the Howard.)
A vivid, colorful movie of poverty and quick wealth, of tender affection and passionate love, of physical danger and kaleidoscopic use of large crowds. "Blood and Sand," Rudolph Valentino's first Paramount picture, which opened at the Howard theater Monday night, is a story of widely varied appeal.

June Mathis has made a screen translation which carries over the Vicente Blasco Ibañez genius in the same striking manner which made so successful "The Four Horsemen" of the "Apocalypse." Mr. Valentino handles with a sure, firm touch, the interesting character of "Juan Gallardo," a young, bright, handsome life and loves from the "meat" of the entertaining chronicle.

As the "logos," beautiful Lila Lee and Lila Naldi are excellently cast. The picture includes a mention of George Field, Walter Long, Rose Rosanova, Marie Marston, Leo White, Harry Lamont, Charles Bickel and Fred Bauer. "Blood and Sand" reflects all of the color and verve of Spain and Spain's famous national sport, maintaining, at the same time, a full understanding of American entertainment requirements.

"The Siren Call"

(At the Rialto.)
A story which teems with colorful action and takes the spectator back to the days of the Alaskan gold rush, "The Siren Call," the Irish Wild production for Paramount, which is the feature attraction at the Rialto theater this week.

Dorothy Dalton is dazzling in her characterization of a dance hall girl. David Powell is ideal as the leading man and Edward J. Brady puts over some of his most effective villainy. Mitchell Lewis is a valuable addition to the cast. Other characters are well played by Will Walling, Leigh Evans, Lucien Littlefield and George Williams.

A new Sunshine comedy, the latest International News and music by the Rialto Melody Artists are additional units.

THREATENING LETTER IS BELIEVED HOAX

Philadelphia, September 12.—Postal inspectors today expressed the belief that a letter threatening to blow up the clubhouse owned $50,000 was paid the writer was a hoax. Nevertheless, government agents and city police were assigned to the building.

The letter directed that the officers of the Union League send the money in a tin box to a certain downtown street corner. The directions were carried out, a postal inspector impersonating a uniformed employee of the club, he carried an empty tin box, but no one approached the inspector.

FRAUD IS CHARGED IN LAND WARRANTS

Frankfort, Ky., September 12.—G. J. Jarvis, a former clerk in the state land record office here, was indicted today by the Franklin county grand jury on a charge of falsifying public records. He is charged with falsifying the records of patents on three parcels of land in Tennessee, totalling 9,000 acres and said to be worth $225,000.

Forged land warrants are alleged to have been made out in favor of W. G. Webb, of Fort Smith, Ark., and J. E. Webb, of Fort Smith, Ark., and other persons, it was intimated, could be implicated. The land in question consists of what is known as the Teller tract, south of Walker's line, and owing to the straightening of the Kentucky-Tennessee boundary in 1820, prior to which time it was in Kentucky, patents are filed in the Frankfort land office.

PLEASE DEFEATED IN SOUTH CAROLINA

First returns received by The State which this week, deducted from 14,000 to 16,000, he maintained a comfortable majority throughout. It is not believed that more than ten thousand to twelve thousand votes can be counted in the primary election, and it is not believed that the majority will not change the result.

In a statement tonight Mr. McLeod said the keen interest shown in the issue of the campaign made him feel that the voters of the state would not be deceived by the tactics of the opposition. He declared that in the campaign he made no personal attack on any one and is leaving it to the voters to decide the issue. He will, he says, be governor of all the people.

TWO SENATORS RE-NOMINATED

Chicago, September 12.—(By The Associated Press.)—Both Charles E. Townsend, United States senator from Michigan, and Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, were re-nominated for the early returns tonight in the primary elections of their respective states.

Senator Townsend, who has been elected to defend himself against charges of having supported Senator Newberry during a hot campaign, was maintaining a lead over his nearest opponent, Herbert F. Baker, at midnight.

In Massachusetts, Senator Lodge was maintaining a lead over his nearest opponent, Joseph Walker who had made an active campaign against the republican incumbent, Senator Lodge, on the basis of his alleged support of Newberry during a hot campaign.

Among the other seven states where primaries were held, Redfield Proctor, a marble manufacturer, was leading Lieutenant Governor Abram W. Foote in Vermont for the republican nomination for governor on the face of the returns from the primary election.

In Arizona early returns George W. P. Hunt, had a lead over Charles B. Ward for the democratic nomination for governor. William E. Sweet was leading in the democratic gubernatorial race in Colorado. Senator Ashurst was unopposed for the republican senatorial nomination.

Edwards, acting high commissioner to the United States from Australia.

The list of distinguished persons composing the commission includes Sir Charles Wakefield, formerly lord mayor of London, and Lord Arthur, formerly lord mayor of London, and Lord Arthur, formerly lord mayor of London, and Lord Arthur, formerly lord mayor of London.

BONDS FOR EDUCATION ARE BIG MACON ISSUE

Macon, Ga., September 12.—(Special.)—Interest locally in tomorrow's election centers upon the school bond election, a campaign for which has been waged for several weeks. The proposed issue is for $500,000 with which to build a new high school boys and two new grammar schools. A similar issue voted on last year was lost because of inability to get out the voters.

Other local features of the primary included contests for judge, the superior court, judge of the municipal court, members of the legislature and congressmen from this district.

Judge M. D. Jones, appointed a year ago to the superior court, is being opposed by John P. Ross, former city court judge and former solicitor of the Macon circuit. Judge Hugh Chambers, the senior judge, is being opposed for re-election by T. J. Cochran and H. F. Strohecker.

There are seven candidates for the three seats in the lower house of the general assembly. The three incumbents, Nat Winslow, J. F. Malone and B. J. Fowler, are candidates for re-election, and in addition, Mrs. Viola Ross, B. E. Henz, C. D. J. Iwin and Archie W. Graves are in the race.

The race for congress has been widely waged in Bibb county. J. J. Flynn has spoken here, but the congressman Wise has contented himself with a letter campaign, though in his race for re-election he has had the outspoken support of the Macon Telegraph.

NEGRO RELIGIOUS MEETING ROUTED AS FIGHT STARTS

Mary L. Carr, negro residing at 42 Oil Mill road, is at Grady hospital suffering from severe wounds about the body said to have been inflicted by a razor in the hands of Louise Harris, also colored, as a result of a dispute between the two at a Holy Roller church service about 9:30 o'clock Tuesday night. The meeting broke up in wild disorder when the fighting started.

The Carr woman was horribly slashed about the face and her left leg was ripped open, according to physicians at Grady. Her chances for recovery are slim. It was stated after the altercation the assailant escaped and had not been captured early this morning. Details of the cutting were furnished police by eyewitnesses to the melee, who claim the two women, following an exchange of angry words, engaged in a fight during which the Harris woman pulled a razor from her clothing and began carving her adversary.
